INTERNATIONAL EXECUTIVE CITIZENS BAND TRANSCEIVER

The Model 100 Executive is a precision engineered transceiver for the Citizens Band licensee seeking outstanding design and performance. For example, the Model 100 is the first commercially available Citizens Band unit which uses a high-frequency crystal filter for achieving and permanently guaranteeing receiver selectivity for the life of the equipment. Use of this filter between the first and second mixers greatly reduces adjacent channel interference.

Simple operating features provide a switch selection of two crystal controlled receive positions or con-

INTERNATIONAL EXECUTIVE CITIZENS BAND TRANSCEIVER

The Model 50 Executive provides for continuous tuning of all 23 Citizens Band channels. In addition, two receiving crystal sockets are provided for selection of any two desired channels. The selection of either crystal controlled channel, or manual tuning is accomplished with a three-position switch on the front panel. International NR squelch silences the receiver during periods when no signal is being received.

The Model 50 has been designed with flexibility of installation in mind. The two tone brass and brown

EMERGENCY CHANNELS YOU CAN MONITOR

Compiled by Tom Kneitel, 10Q3161

Managing Editor

CB HORIZONS MAGAZINE

As CB Clubs become increasingly active in Civil Defense and emergency operations in conjunction with established governmental agencies, it becomes more and more important for them to be able to monitor certain operational channels of the agencies which they aid. We list here certain of these radio-telephone frequencies which we believe will be most useful for this purpose. Frequencies shown for particular groups of stations are not necessarily the only ones upon which they operate, but are the frequencies which contain the largest number of stations in the group indicated, and are the most useful to monitor.

Contrary to popular belief, it is not illegal to monitor police transmissions. Receivers covering these frequencies are plentiful and can be obtained from all large radio supply houses. One popular method of inexpensively covering many of these channels is by means of adding a converter to any receiver which will tune the standard AM broadcasting band.

Inasmuch as there are thousands of local city and county police departments operating radio transmitters, we have not attempted to list each individual police station—only those operated by state governments. You can usually obtain your local police, sheriff and CD/Disaster frequencies by checking with the particular agencies directly. A space is provided below for you to write these frequencies in for future reference:

Front panel selection of one of 3 transmit crystals with continuous receiver tuning over all 23 CB channels, or a fourth transmit crystal with appropriate receiving crystal. Press-to-talk button on microphone; transmit-receive switching accomplished by high-quality relay with minimum capacity between contacts to prevent current leakage at RF frequencies. Superhet receiver with RF stage for high sensitivity & proper signal-to-noise ratio. 1750 KC IF strip for unequalled image rejection & freedom from oscillator "pulling" on strong signals. IF strip prealigned so that only "touchup" alignment without instruments is needed. Current metering jack in series in cathode circuit allows checking of input power to transmitter final and adjusting it to FCC limit. 13-tube performance (4 dual function tubes, 4 single function tubes, plus germanium diode). Adjustable squelch control (in addition to automatic noise limiter). Optimum adjustment to any popular CB antenna assured through use of variable pi network in output. AVC. 3" x 5" oval PM speaker. Supplied complete with 8 tubes & 1 transmit crystal (extra crystals $3.95 each).

The entire transmitter oscillator circuit and RF final in every EICO transceiver, kit and wired, is pre-mounted prewired, pretuned, and sealed at the factory (about 3 hours of skilled labor, precision adjustments and testing), complying with FCC regulations (section 19.71, part d). This permits you to build the kit and put it on the air without the supervision of a commercial radio-telephone licensee.

CB PLUMBING AND YOU!

By CHARLES MESSENGER, 11W4165
Chief Engineer, General Radiotelephone Co.

My buddy Joe Hipot, 42W2806 just shelled out close to $300 for the sensational new 1962 PIZZAZ CB Rig complete with a DESCHMALTZER Noise Burster and a 10 element KAMIKAZE SUICIDE BEAM fed by a Pressurized IVY LEAGUE COAX line. Old Dr. Cooper tells me that Joe will be up and around again in a few days. I guess that first QSO was more than he could bear. The very night Joe made that first contact and blurted out those immortal words: "Howmy kommin tru?", old Harvey Gulchblast threw the big switch on his 3 tube FLOPKIT and wiped poor Joe Out. I was lucky enough to get to Joe's trash can before the other vultures. I'm proud to announce that I am now the owner of a slightly stomped-on 1962 PIZZAZ.

More often this fiction is fact. With the many fine brands of CB equipment now available, it is truly amazing how few stations are able to attain the coverage which a properly installed rig is capable of doing. Many of us attempt to do the proper job, but usually end up with a lot of vague advice and some confusing electronic terms that are probably unrelated to the problem at hand. As a last resort, a few of the boys decide that the unit they purchased just wasn't designed properly. After proceeding to literally butcher an otherwise new rig, it finally becomes apparent that all the problems encountered were due to poor installation and set up. I firmly believe that the first step towards a successful installation is to forget the words db., "Q", Velocity Factor, Impedance, and Hormone Level. Plain common sense and logic will give the desired results. The system as a whole should be treated as a plumbing system, wherein we think of the primary power source as the well, the transmitter as the pump, the antenna cable as the piping, and the antenna as a sprinkler nozzle.

Naturally, a flow of water or energy will be limited at the point where the piping is the smallest and the loss of efficiency due to leaks or improper connections. Before water may be drawn from a well, it is usually "sounded" to determine if it has sufficient capacity to feed the pump. In this instance it is the mobile power source which is the worst offender when poor performance is encountered. The first step is to check our well, which in this case is a battery. With the rig turned "ON", and the engine "OFF", measure the voltage across the battery. It should read between 12.2 volts and 12.6 volts DC. If less than 12 volts are shown, it will be like trying to draw water from a dry well. On the other hand, many newer models of autos are being supplied with regulators that have been adjusted at the factory as high as 14.5 to 16 volts! This is dangerously high and has in many cases damaged components, burnt vibrators and caused constant tube breakdown. Even the finest equipment available is not totally immune to this abuse. Why is this being done? The truth is that during the past few years, our seemingly progressive auto makers have seen fit to gradually reduce the size of wiring and have switched from screw type fastenings to cheaper steel or very thin brass "clip-on" types for fastening the quite complex system together. These Detroit "innovations" add up to a sorry power source indeed, to put it politely. With systems such as this, it isn't hard to picture yourself turning on the headlights and having the front of your buggy about as bright as Aunt Minnie's birthday cake. Well, being in such a hurry to get home to Mama, let's forget the lights. Step on the starter and the old buggy groans just once and dies. This is probably what would happen to you if some Genius at "Car-ville" didn't come up with the brilliant inspiration to simply charge that 12 volt battery at 15 or 16 volts and make up for all the wire losses, even if it ruins the battery. This really solved the problem! (they thought). Fact is that now we are even worse off than before.

Well, let's get back to the plumbing problem. The old rig is turned on and purring away pretty as you please. The light changes to green and Zoom—away we go. That very moment you hit the gas pedal the generator voltage going into this system soared all the way from 12.2 right on up to, and perhaps beyond, 16 volts. Now the old pump is really grinding out the signal, but of course our receiver is just about ready to burn up and is completely off channel while the squelch control has tantrums. Press the mike button and VOILA!. We are really putting out the power now. Of course the fact that our transmitter is completely off frequency now shouldn't worry us too much because we won't be on the air too long anyway. The rig will probably burn up in a little while. Red light—STOP—Old Bess is down to a slow idle now and suddenly you may notice the rig kind of die down to a whisper and the dial light fades away. You listen to that strange grinding sound coming out of the set, but don't let that worry you, it's only the vibrator burning up because the generator isn't working now and with the lights and heater on we are trying to run a rig on 9 volts. If it can be done for any length of time, you deserve a medal of some sort.

Where do we go from here? NO, don't trade it back for a Model A. Have your regulator readjusted for 12.6 volts. Of course Elmer (our mechanic) will be a mite upset. "It Sez Rite Hear In the Blue Book that all ZILCH V8's should be set at 14.9 Volts . . . It jus' caint be Dun!" At this point you had better use a little tact. Tell him you're going to install a mobile "Seismograph" to record "Highway tremors" for the Civil Defense Department. Now that we finally have our well at a healthy level, run a pair of Number 12 gauge wires directly to the Battery. Be sure the rig is properly fused, when hooking up to our new source of power. Now you should be able to operate with the engine "OFF" or at a 60 clip and still have a steady source of energy—pardon me, I meant water.

Now that the pump has been turned on and the well is full, let's find out if our piping is able to handle the flow of Water and if there are any leaks. In order to do this we will need a water meter, but, as most local utilities frown on tearing out their meters, let's settle for a wattmeter or SWR bridge. The directions for operating these instruments are supplied by the manufacturer and are as simple as peeling boiled potatoes.

Install the meter into our piping system and depress the transmit button. If the legal maximum of 5 watts input is being applied to the power Amplifier (pump) then we should end up with from 2 to 3½ watts of power being pumped into our piping. The output will be considerably different with different brands of sets. Actually, the coverage obtained will depend much more on how we pipe and disperse the power than the amount of power itself. Using the meter, adjust the output tuning until maximum meter reading is obtained. You might compare this to adjusting a pump pressure regulator. At this point it's probably safe to say that we are pumping water to the nozzle like all gitout, but we're still not sure what's coming out of the nozzle. Let's compare the three most commonly used antennas to the spray patterns of a sprinkler nozzle.

Notice that the ground plane "nozzle" scatters most of the water upward and outward at a very high angle of radiation. This is not too desirable since some coverage is lost directly below the source of water or in other words, local coverage is lost.

While the Coaxial nozzle has the advantage of excellent local coverage, very little power is scattered outward which limits the distance very sharply.

The Colinear type would seem to give the most uniform pattern on a horizontal plane. Very little energy is wasted by being shot straight up into the air, while the energy is almost fully confined in the direction needed for full coverage from the antenna to the horizon.

Which one do we really need?

Logic says that the fellow who uses his gear for business in a confined area of a few miles radius would best benefit by using a coaxial antenna. The lack of ability to receive much skip or skywave reception is very desirable when using 11 meter gear for business.

For those who enjoy listening to those distant skip stations, the ground plane is really the only way to travel, if you don't mind slightly weaker local coverage.

General usage requirements would best be met by a system that could literally reach "out yonder" while still holding most of the energy near the ground to provide consistent local coverage without the dead spots encountered by the 2 aforementioned antennas. The colinear antenna has been proven to provide this calibre of coverage and has advantage of wasting the least amount of energy by scattering in an upward pattern.

Now we are ready to choose the system which will do the best job for our needs. If you're all set up, checked out and ready to throw the big switch, let's get on the air and show the boys a thing or two.

What? You say it still won't work? You better do what I did . . . Call BO-9-9970 and ask for HARVEY GULCH-BLAST, LICENSED PLUMBER.

CHOOSING A CB RIG

Herbert Friedman, 2W6045
Eastern Technical Editor, CB Horizons

If you are about to purchase your first CB rig or are ready to trade-up, you have probably been overwhelmed in a sea of equipment, making the choice of the proper transceiver somewhat difficult.

Modesto Mike, always right-on the CBers' problems has made the task easier by assembling the biggest and most complete CB directory ever to appear in print. Here you will find equipment to fit every budget and use.

As you read through the directory you will notice transceivers offer a wide selection of features, ranging from coiled cords on push-to-talk microphones, to highly selective receivers. By listing (and do it on paper) the features you require, the proper decision can be made the first time. Remember, no one is more unhappy than the CBER who has purchased equipment not suiting his needs.

Since transceivers range in price from fifty to over two hundred dollars, they obviously cannot all be equal in performance; yet, every model offers something to someone.

Price and Selectivity

When price is an important consideration, the choice is not too difficult as Budget Transceivers have (more or less) similar features; and all these units give good performance, particularly in areas of low CB activity. For farms, construction and survey crews, light family use and hobbyists, the Budget models give good value for the money. However, the lack of selectivity, which is the ability to reject adjacent channel interference, is a limitation in high activity areas and consideration should be given in this instance to a more selective receiver.

With some exceptions, which can be determined from the specifications in the directory, the higher the price, the higher the selectivity.

From about one hundred dollars up, the selection of a transceiver becomes more complex, since, within a given price range transceiver features can differ markedly.

Your Use of CB

When choosing equipment classed above the Budget models, particular consideration must be given to the use the CB rig will be put. As an example, consider what features would be required by a service or towing operator whose only requirement of communications is that both he and his trucks hear questions and instructions.

To start with, he would need adequate selectivity, and this is virtually no problem in the more expensive transceivers (over one hundred dollars). The most satisfactory results would probably be obtained from a crystal controlled receiver. The crystal control will insure that the equipment is always tuned to the operating frequency. Aging of tubes and varying truck voltages will not cause the receiver setting to change, insuring reception with a minimum of attention. Quite possibly, he would want his transceivers equipped with extra channels to get around the interference caused by other stations and by industrial radiation in metropolitan areas.

On the other hand, someone who is interested in CB primarily for personal use or channel-hopping would find that a crystal controlled receiver in conjunction with variable tuning would probably give the most satisfactory performance; the crystal control useful for club activities, the advantages of variable tuning being self evident.

Services in the "vital communications group," such as fire, police and municipal services as well as business organizations in areas with very high or saturated CB activity should consider a transceiver with a receiver section having high selectivity and sensitivity. By using multiple low frequency i.f. stages, crystal or mechanical filters, they achieve an extreme degree of selectivity, being virtually free of adjacent channel interference. Their extra sensitivity makes these units particularly effective when operations are extended beyond the edges of the normal reception fringe area.

And speaking of fringe area, manufacturers are starting to add speech limiting (clipping); a means of sustaining a consistently high level of modulation. Whether you lower your voice, or back off the microphone, the transmitter is always fully modulated. I suspect that this feature will come into more frequent use since it is an effective means of improving fringe area operation (the per cent of modulation has a direct bearing on whether a weak signal can be heard over the noise level).

More Features

Another feature of use to many operators is a telephone handset. Some transceivers come equipped with a handset or are wired such that a handset can be easily added. Not only does the handset insure "telephone privacy," but "speaker blasting," which can be very annoying in a quiet office, is eliminated. Also, since the handset feeds the receiver output directly into the ear, it is useful in overcoming high room or external noise.

Another convenient circuit, which should be considered by garages, boat marinas and other shops in which the staff is constantly on the move, is in the "in-built alarm circuit"; which will probably be used by many manufacturers in the future. A transceiver equipped with an alarm circuit need not be attended, since an incoming signal will ring a bell or buzzer located any reasonable distance from the transceiver.

And while we are on special features, don't forget the very common circuit, push-to-talk. While mobile-in-motion is not the best method of operating, it is done; and for safety's sake, your budget notwithstanding, any transceiver used in mobile service should be equipped with push-to-talk. It is foolish to have to reach across the seat of a moving car in order to switch the transceiver; remember, the less distraction from the business of driving—the better!

Now let's consider an often over-voiced item, the case housing the transceiver. Water spray, particularly salt water, can play havoc on a metal case, so if you cannot protect a boat mounted transceiver from spray, investigate a transceiver utilizing a plastic or epoxy case.

There are many more useful features and we will end this section by noting two of these; the S-meter and the power output meter. Usually these two meters are combined in one unit. The S-meter being an indicator of relative signal strength is useful in assisting the other fellow tune his equipment. The power output meter will indicate when your rig is tuned to a "full five," and it will indicate when your transmitter tubes are "going soft." As your tubes get weaker the power output will drop. While the S-meter can be considered a luxury feature, the power output meter is very useful to insure peak performance from your transmitter.

Walkie and Handie-Talkies

Recently, two new types of transceivers have appeared in considerable quantity; the walkie and handie-talkies.

The walkie-talkie is generally a transistorized "full feature" transceiver with power outputs of one-half watt or more, selective receivers, push-to-talk, squelch, etc.

Because transistors have low power requirements, these units can operate from lightweight, rechargeable battery packs; their small size and weight making them particularly attractive for field use. Campers and hunting parties will find them very useful as base stations when used in conjunction with handie-talkies. The base station walkie-talkies can be left on "squelch," always ready to "sound off" when a handie-talkie calls in.

The handie-talkie is transistorized and hand sized, usually using simple receiver circuitry with transmitters limited to under 100 milliwatts. It has a dependable range of up to one mile depending on terrain and a fringe range of up to about three miles. As mentioned, they are particularly useful when used in conjunction with walkie-talkie equipped field groups.

Before you can make an intelligent choice you must accept an important fact—the manufacturers of CB equipment are reputable companies with reputations to protect, they intend to be in business a long time and they can only do this by giving satisfaction. Whatever the price of the CB rig, you can be sure the manufacturer has endeavored to give at least fair value for your money.

So You Bought A Rig . . .

NOW WHAT?

By Herb Friedman, 2W6045
Eastern Technical Editor, CB Horizons

Back in the early days of CB it was not unusual to see advertisements reading: "You too can have a radiophone; send X dollars today for two units". These ads usually showed a smiling businessman operating a mobile rig, and a secretary with an even wider smile at the base station. It wasn't until after the equipment arrived that one learned there are things called antennas, transmission line and tuning meters.

Fortunately for the consumer, there is not only a better understanding on his part of the required equipment, but, the distributors are better informed as to what is required locally; and with a little attention to the installation, maximum results can be obtained the first time at minimum cost.

The two basic CB units, the transceiver and antenna are designed to mate—the transmitter has a 50 ohm output and the antenna, with mobile whips the exception, have 50 ohm impedances (radiation resistance). It is only necessary to connect the two together with 50 coaxial cable for immediate good results. The least expensive coax and the easiest to handle because of its flexibility is RG-58A/U which is perfectly adequate for lengths up to about fifty feet. Above fifty feet the signal attenuated by the coax becomes appreciable, and a cable having less loss is called for, e.g. RG8/U. RG8/U is both expensive and unwieldy, and the extra expense and effort is not worthwhile where short coax lengths are used. There are cables having less loss other than RG8/U but their high cost is usually not reflected in increased performance unless extremely long transmission lines are being used.

The 50 ohm impedance of base station antennas matches perfectly the impedance of the coax transmission line, resulting in a very low standing wave ratio (SWR). A low SWR means the coax is "flat", it can be any random length, it is not necessary to trim it to a multiple of a half wavelength (12'). As a matter of fact, if trimming the coax changes the transmitter loading or the SWR—you have troubles!!!!

Mobile units are a different story. The standard 109" whip (including spring) has a low impedance and therefore a built-in SWR. By using a tuned transmission line (half wavelength multiple) the maximum power is transferred to the antenna. Keep in mind that the coax from the output coil of the transceiver to the antenna jack is part of the half wavelength, and is subtracted from the half wavelength multiple. (i.e., If your transceiver has two feet of internal coax, the connecting cable from transceiver to antenna is ten feet or twenty two feet.)

Because it indicates relative power radiated from the antenna, the field strength meter is an accurate indicator of transmitter tuning. However, while it is easy to place an FSM near a mobile antenna it is quite difficult to place and read an FSM near a base station antenna twenty feet above rooftop. Maximum tune-up of a base station is most easily accomplished with a Standing Wave Ratio Meter (SWRM). The SWRM measures both the power fed to the antenna (forward power) and the power reflected back down the line (reflected power) due to the mismatch between the antenna and the line. The maximum tune-up is achieved when the transmitter is tuned for maximum forward power.

At this point we would like to point out that CBers spend too much time worrying about SWR. CB equipment is designed to mate and without any bother other than connecting the equipment, a low SWR is insured.

Theoretically, just connecting matched equipment should result in a 1:1 SWR, but unfortunately, there are always antenna variations and an SWR of 1.25:1 or 1.5:1 is common. An SWR of 1.5:1 or less is nothing to be concerned about; the difference at the receiving station is negligible and is not worth the time, effort or money expended in reducing a 1.5:1 SWR at base stations.

Mobiles are a different story. At their best, mobile whips have an SWR of 1.65:1 and they should always be tuned for minimum SWR.

Both base and mobile antennas come in a variety of designs, and since they are most thoroughly covered in many publications we will restrict our comments to directional beams. Beams are coming into more frequent use because of two important advantages. The beam increases the effective radiated power (ERP) by concentrating the available power in one direction, giving the effect of increased transmitter power. (A beam with a 6db forward gain gives an equivalent signal of a 20 watt transmitter.) As a result of concentrating the signal forward, the rear and side sensitivity is reduced. Therefore, when receiving, interfering signals from directions other than the one you are working are attenuated. Since CBers use vertical polarization, be certain when purchasing a beam for general use that it is a vertical beam. A horizontal beam means across polarized signal with a loss of 30-50db. in received signal strength.

Getting top performance from the CB service is not difficult if you use equipment throughout which is specifically designed for CB use.

PRECISION TUNING THE MOBILE WHIP

By Herbert Friedman, 2W6045
Eastern Technical Editor, CB Horizons

An antenna which is not tuned to the CB band will not only cause losses due to a high standing wave ratio (SWR), but it will accept power from the transmitter only with difficulty. Maximum performance from the transceiver is obtained only when the antenna and its feedline are properly tuned.

To start the tuning, the transmission line must be used as a matching transformer.

The standard whip has a radiation resistance considerably less than 50 ohms; if a 50 ohm transmission line of a random length is used, the SWR may prevent proper loading of the transceiver in addition to inefficiency produced by the SWR. However, if the transmission line is cut to an electrical multiple of a half-wavelength, or 12 feet for the CB band, as far as the transmitter is concerned the only load it "sees" is the antenna and not the transmission line. (A continuously loaded whip has an impedance of 50 ohms and in this one case there is no problem with the transmission line, so a random length may be used. However, in the event there are variations which are unknown, use a 12-foot coax cable.

The SWR meter (SWRM) is the best indicator of antenna system performance; a low SWR indicating that the antenna system is tuned and accepting most of the R.F. output from the transmitter, a high SWR indicating that considerable R.F. output is being lost in the coax transmission line and perhaps preventing the transmitter from load-

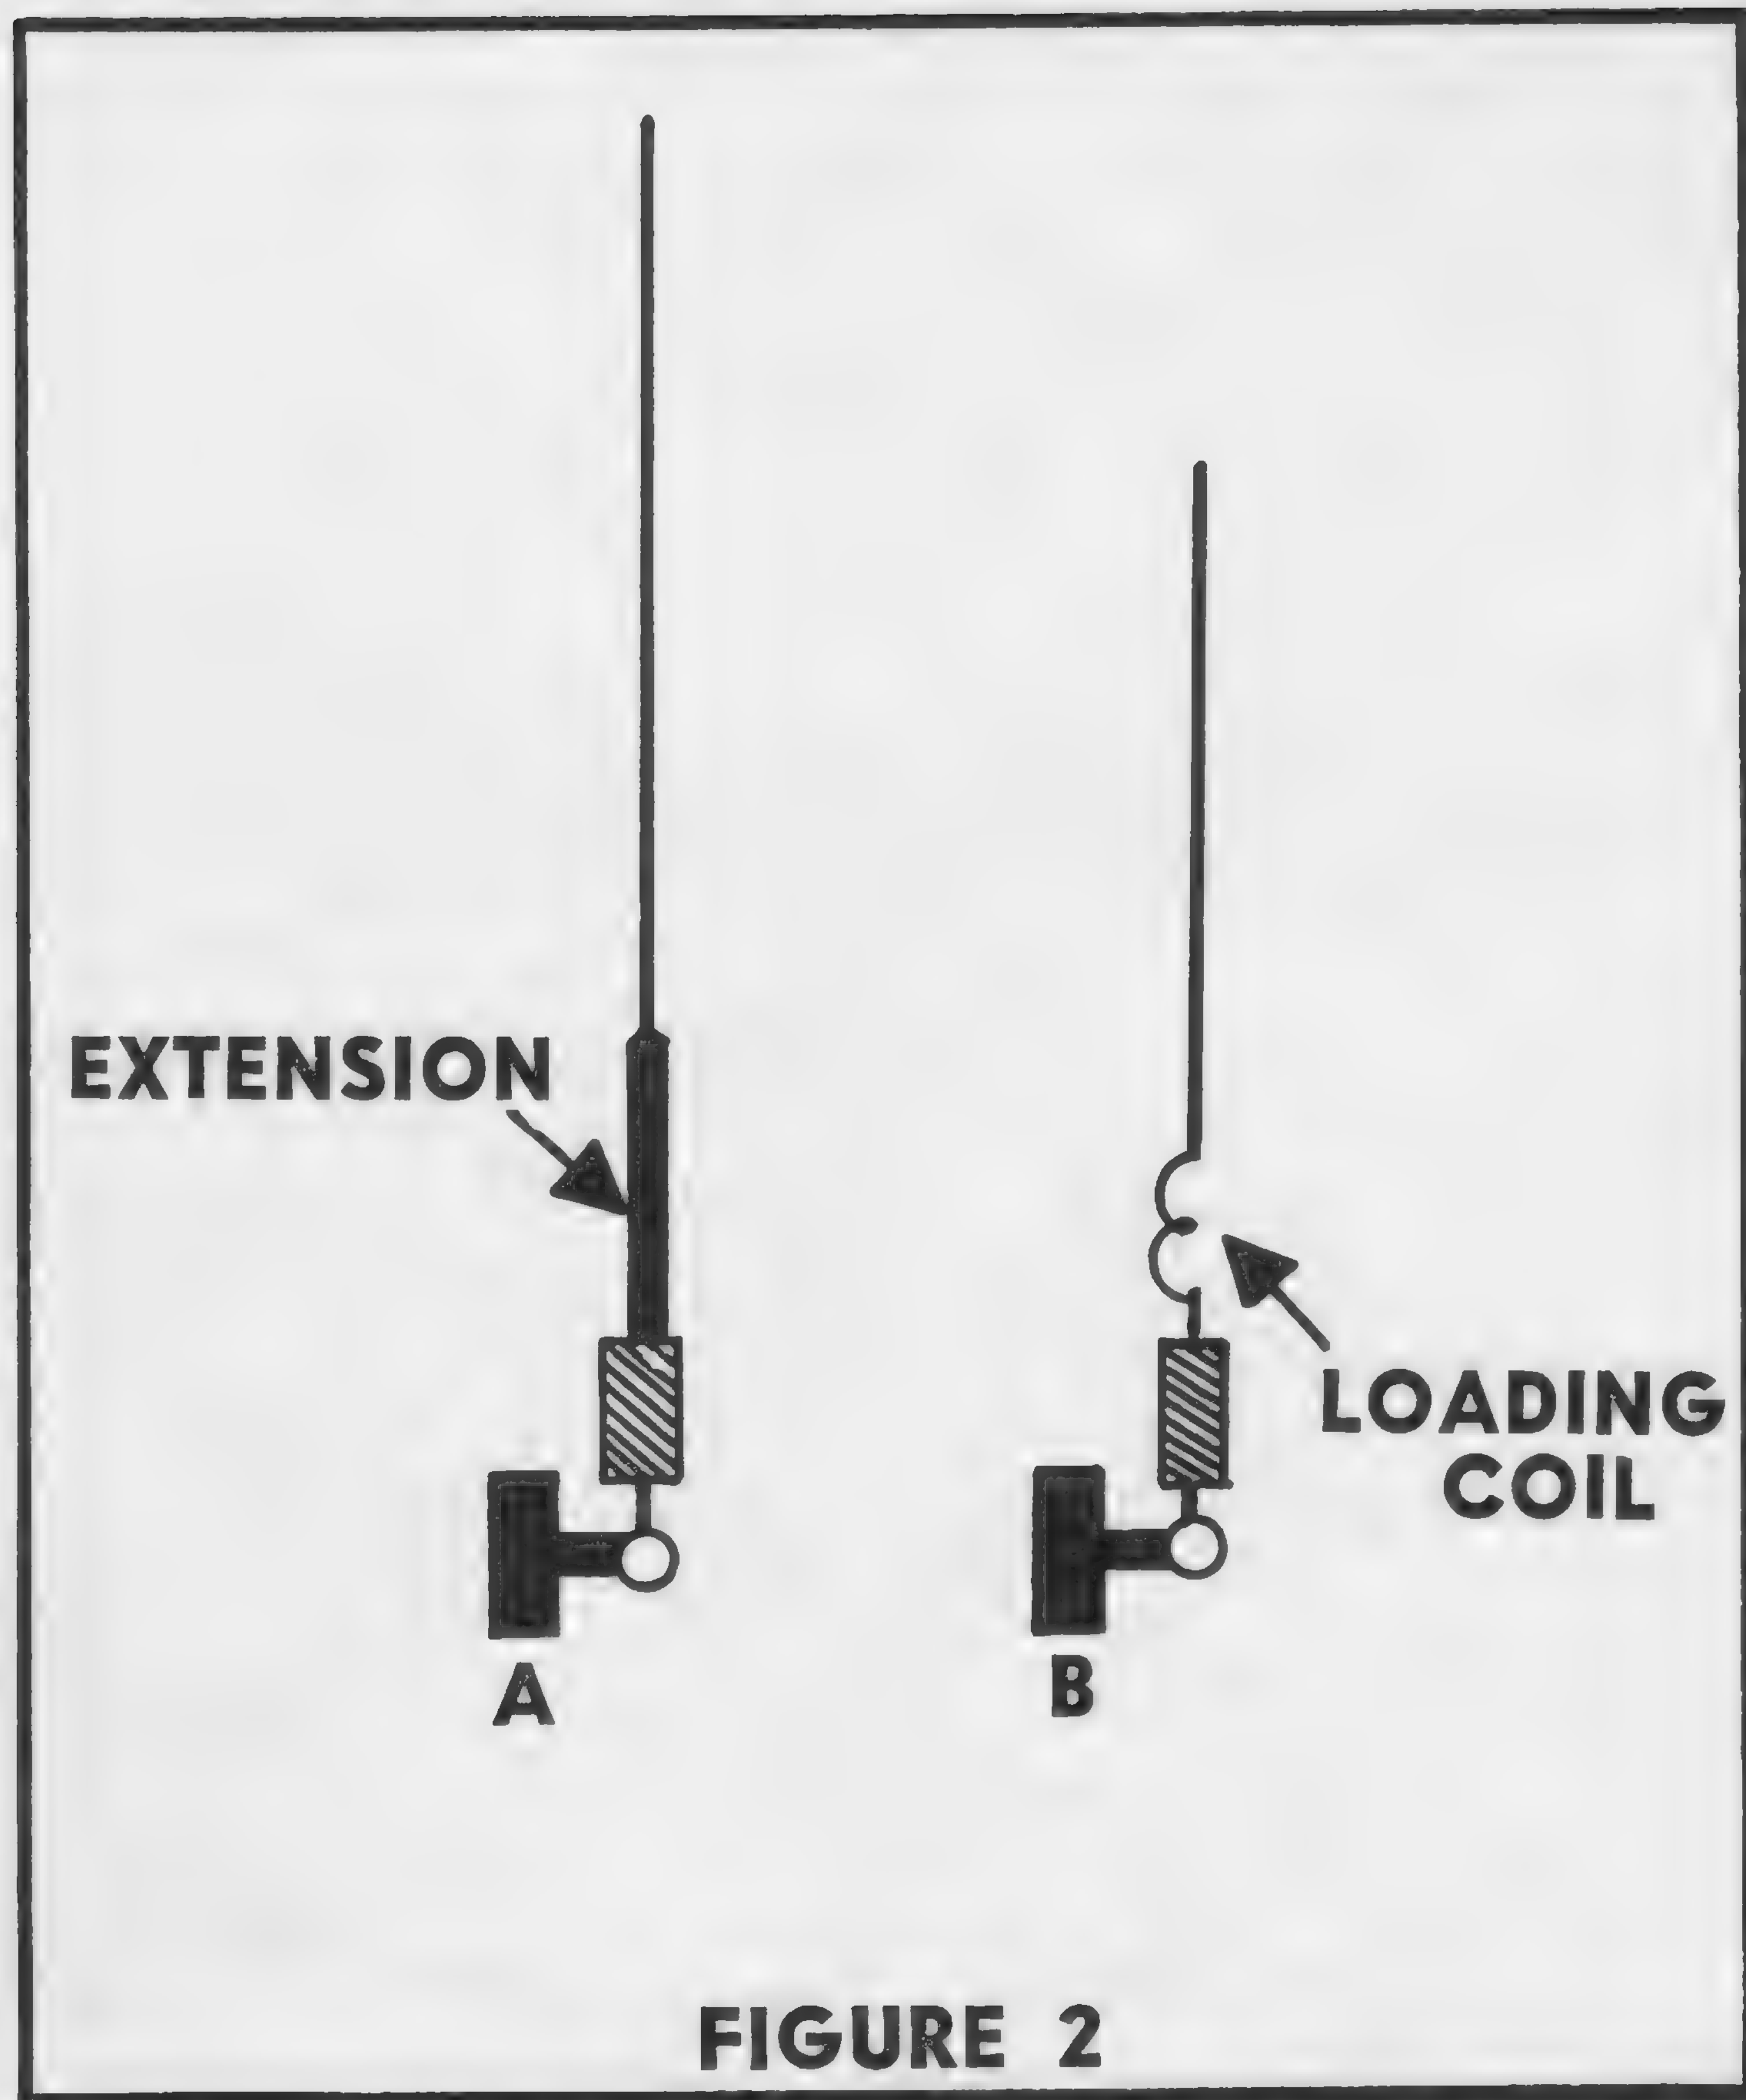

Fig. 2. Antenna can be lengthened by adding an extension, as in A, or by using a loading coil, as in B.

If the antenna's transmission line is one half electrical-wavelength, the SWRM and its connecting cable must be part of the 12 feet. As an example, if the SWRM has a spacing of six inches between connectors and a connecting cable 18 inches long, the transmission line must be cut to a length of 10 feet. After you have completed your SWR tests and removed the meter from the line, a section of matching cable two feet long is added to the line in order to maintain the 12 feet (See Figure #1).

If the SWR indication is low, you know your antenna is working at top efficiency. If the indication is high, you can be certain that the antenna is not tuned to 27 mc., but how much is it off and in which direction, this is where we use a Grid Dip Oscillator (GDO).

The GDO is a resonance indicator and is an invaluable aid in antenna tuning; the GDO will tell you to what frequency your antenna is tuned.

If you have a standard or coil loaded whip, remove the transmission line at the base of the antenna; connect a two turn loop of wire about three quarters inch in diameter between the base of the whip and ground using the shortest leads possible. Couple the GDO to the loop and tune the GDO for dip (resonance). If the antenna is resonant above the CB band (27 mc.) it can be lengthened either physically or electrically by using a whip extension or a loading coil (See Figure #2). These items are available from any antenna dealer. If the antenna is resonant below 27 mc. it is best to shorten the antenna electrically by connecting a 150 uufd. variable capacitor between the base of the antenna and the center conductor of the coax transmission line; adjust the capacitor from minimum to maximum until the antenna is resonant at 27 mc. or your exact operating frequency. Remember, the capacitor is part of the antenna and the test loop is formed between the capacitor and ground (See Figure #3).

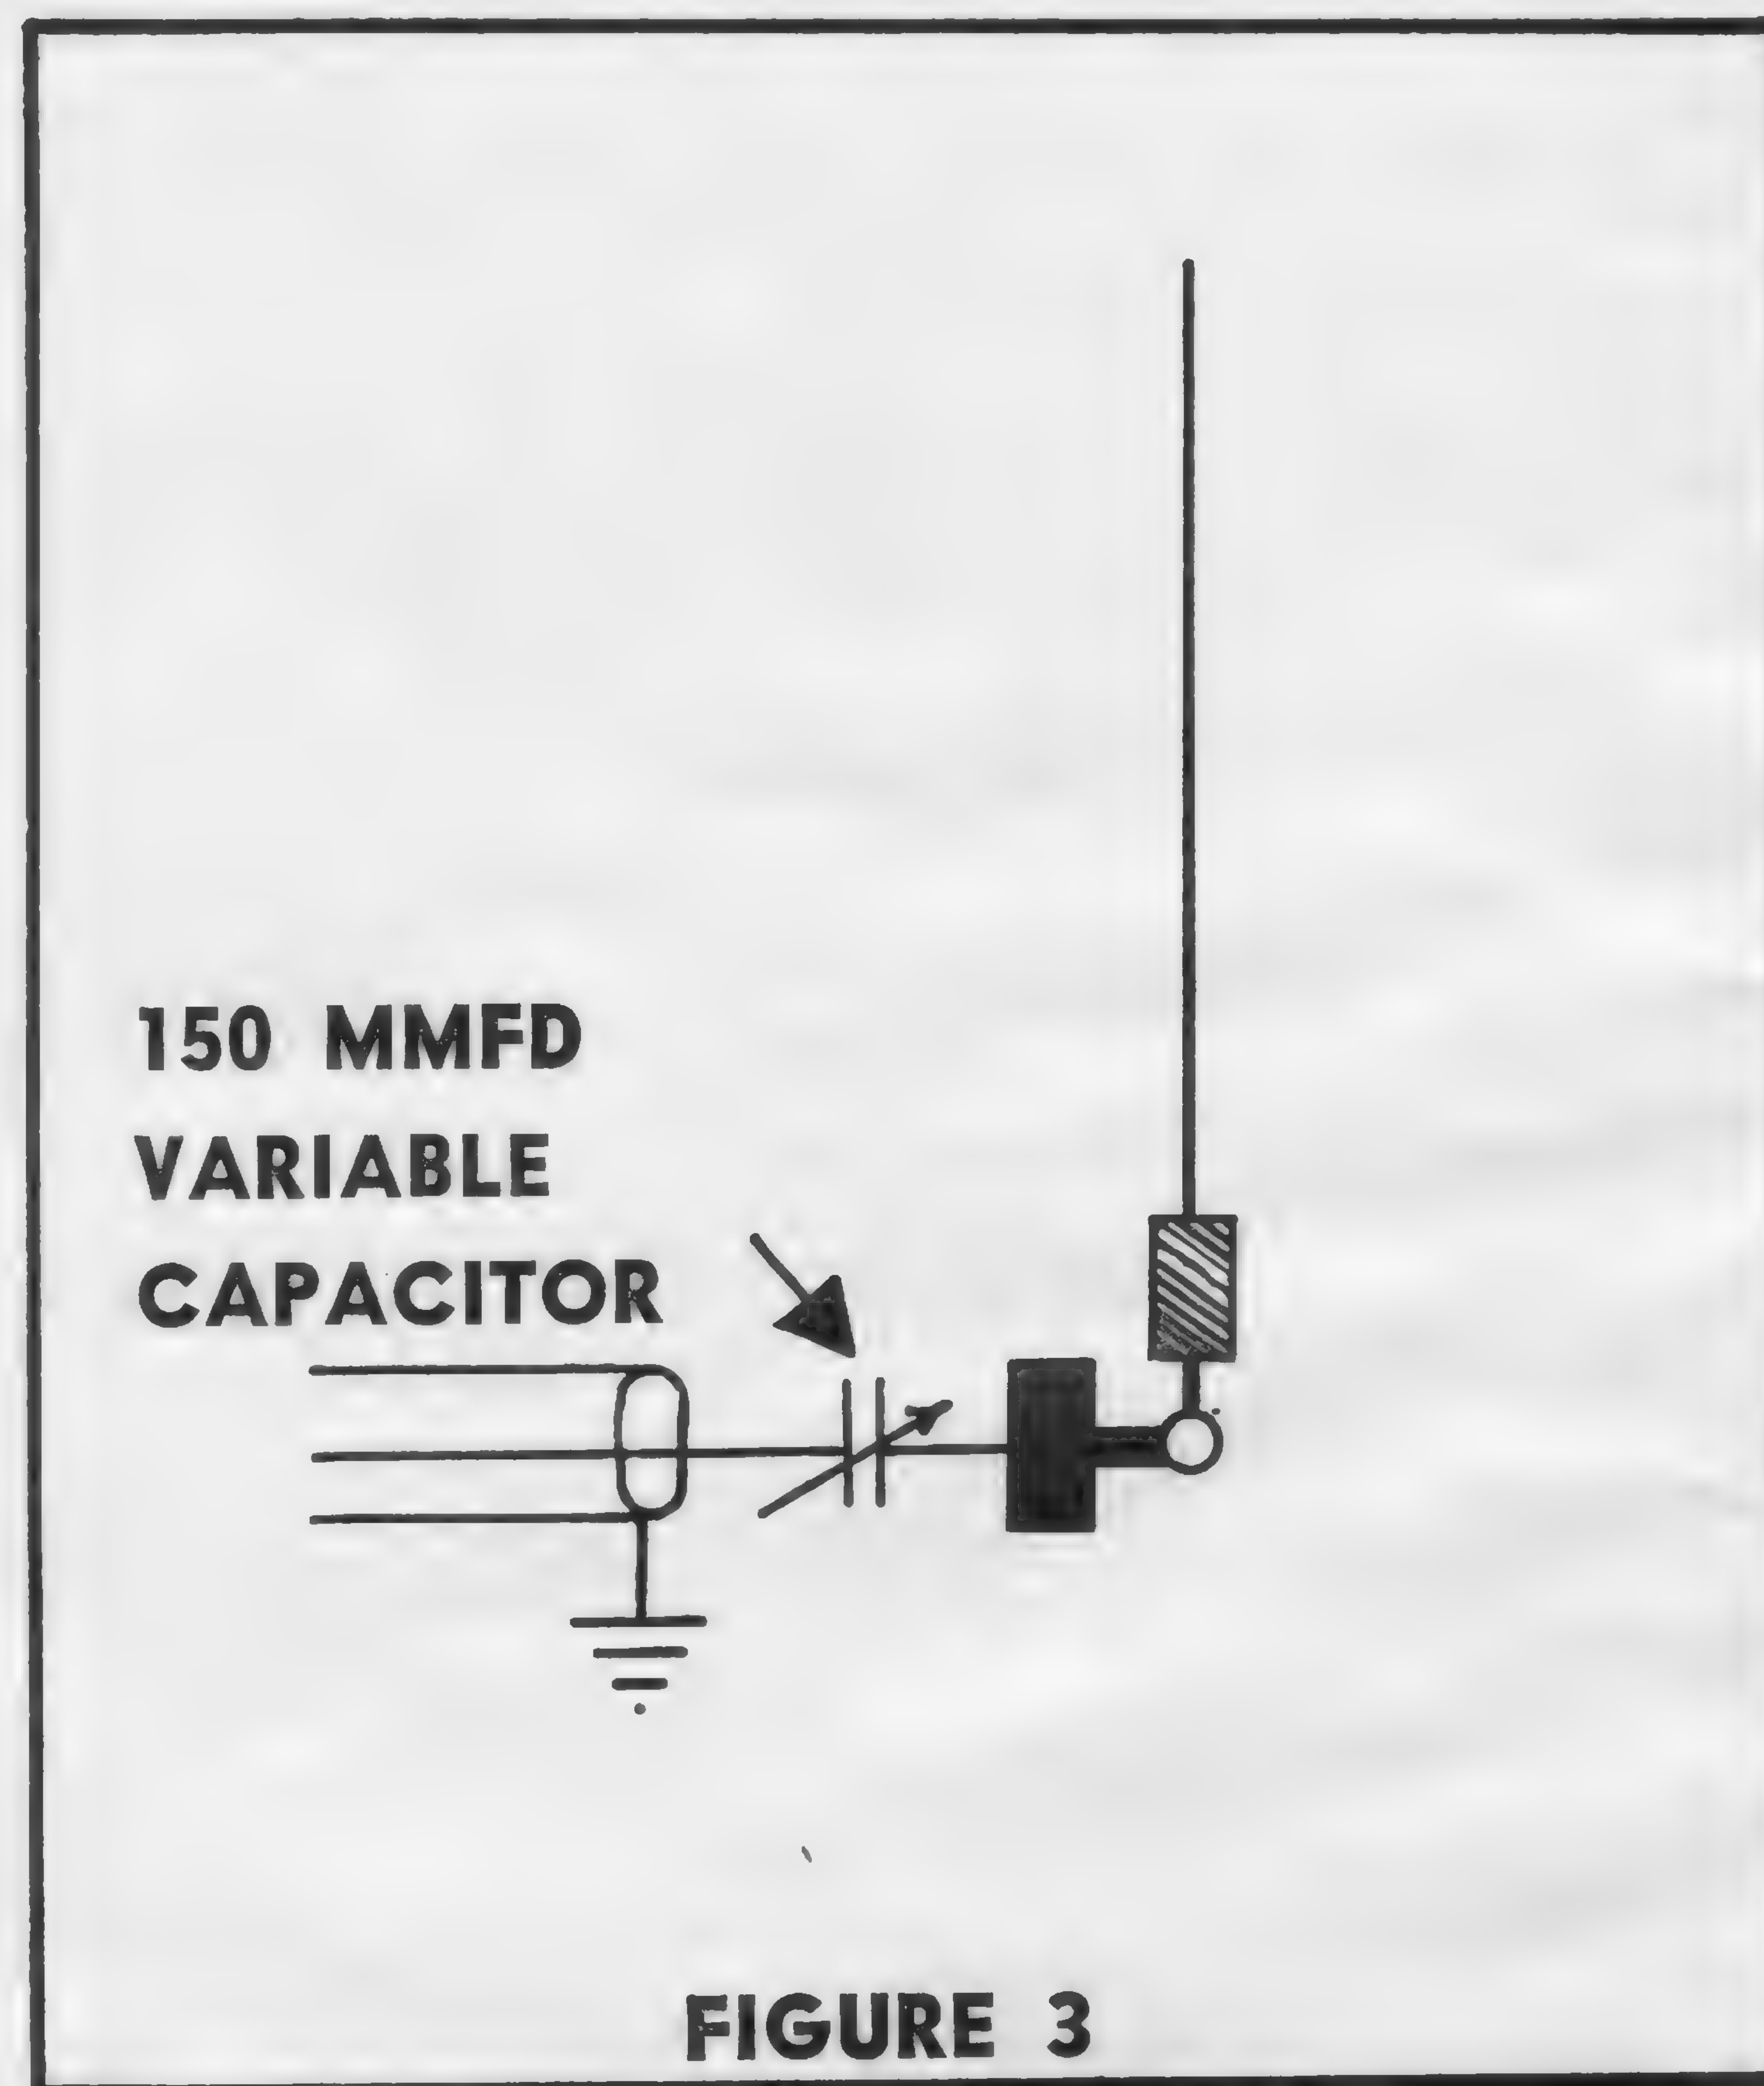

Fig. 3. Antenna is electrically shortened by using a series capacitor.

The continuously loaded whip is handled somewhat differently. Since the transmission line is "flat" the GDO can be coupled into a test loop formed at the input end of the transmission line (i.e. at the transceiver). Remove the protective tip cap exposing the end of the coil winding and slowly, about $\frac{1}{2}$ turn at a time, remove the top winding until the antenna is resonant at 27 mc.

BUILD THIS SIMPLE CB ALIGNMENT OSCILLATOR

By Herb Friedman, 2W6045
Eastern Technical Editor, CB Horizons

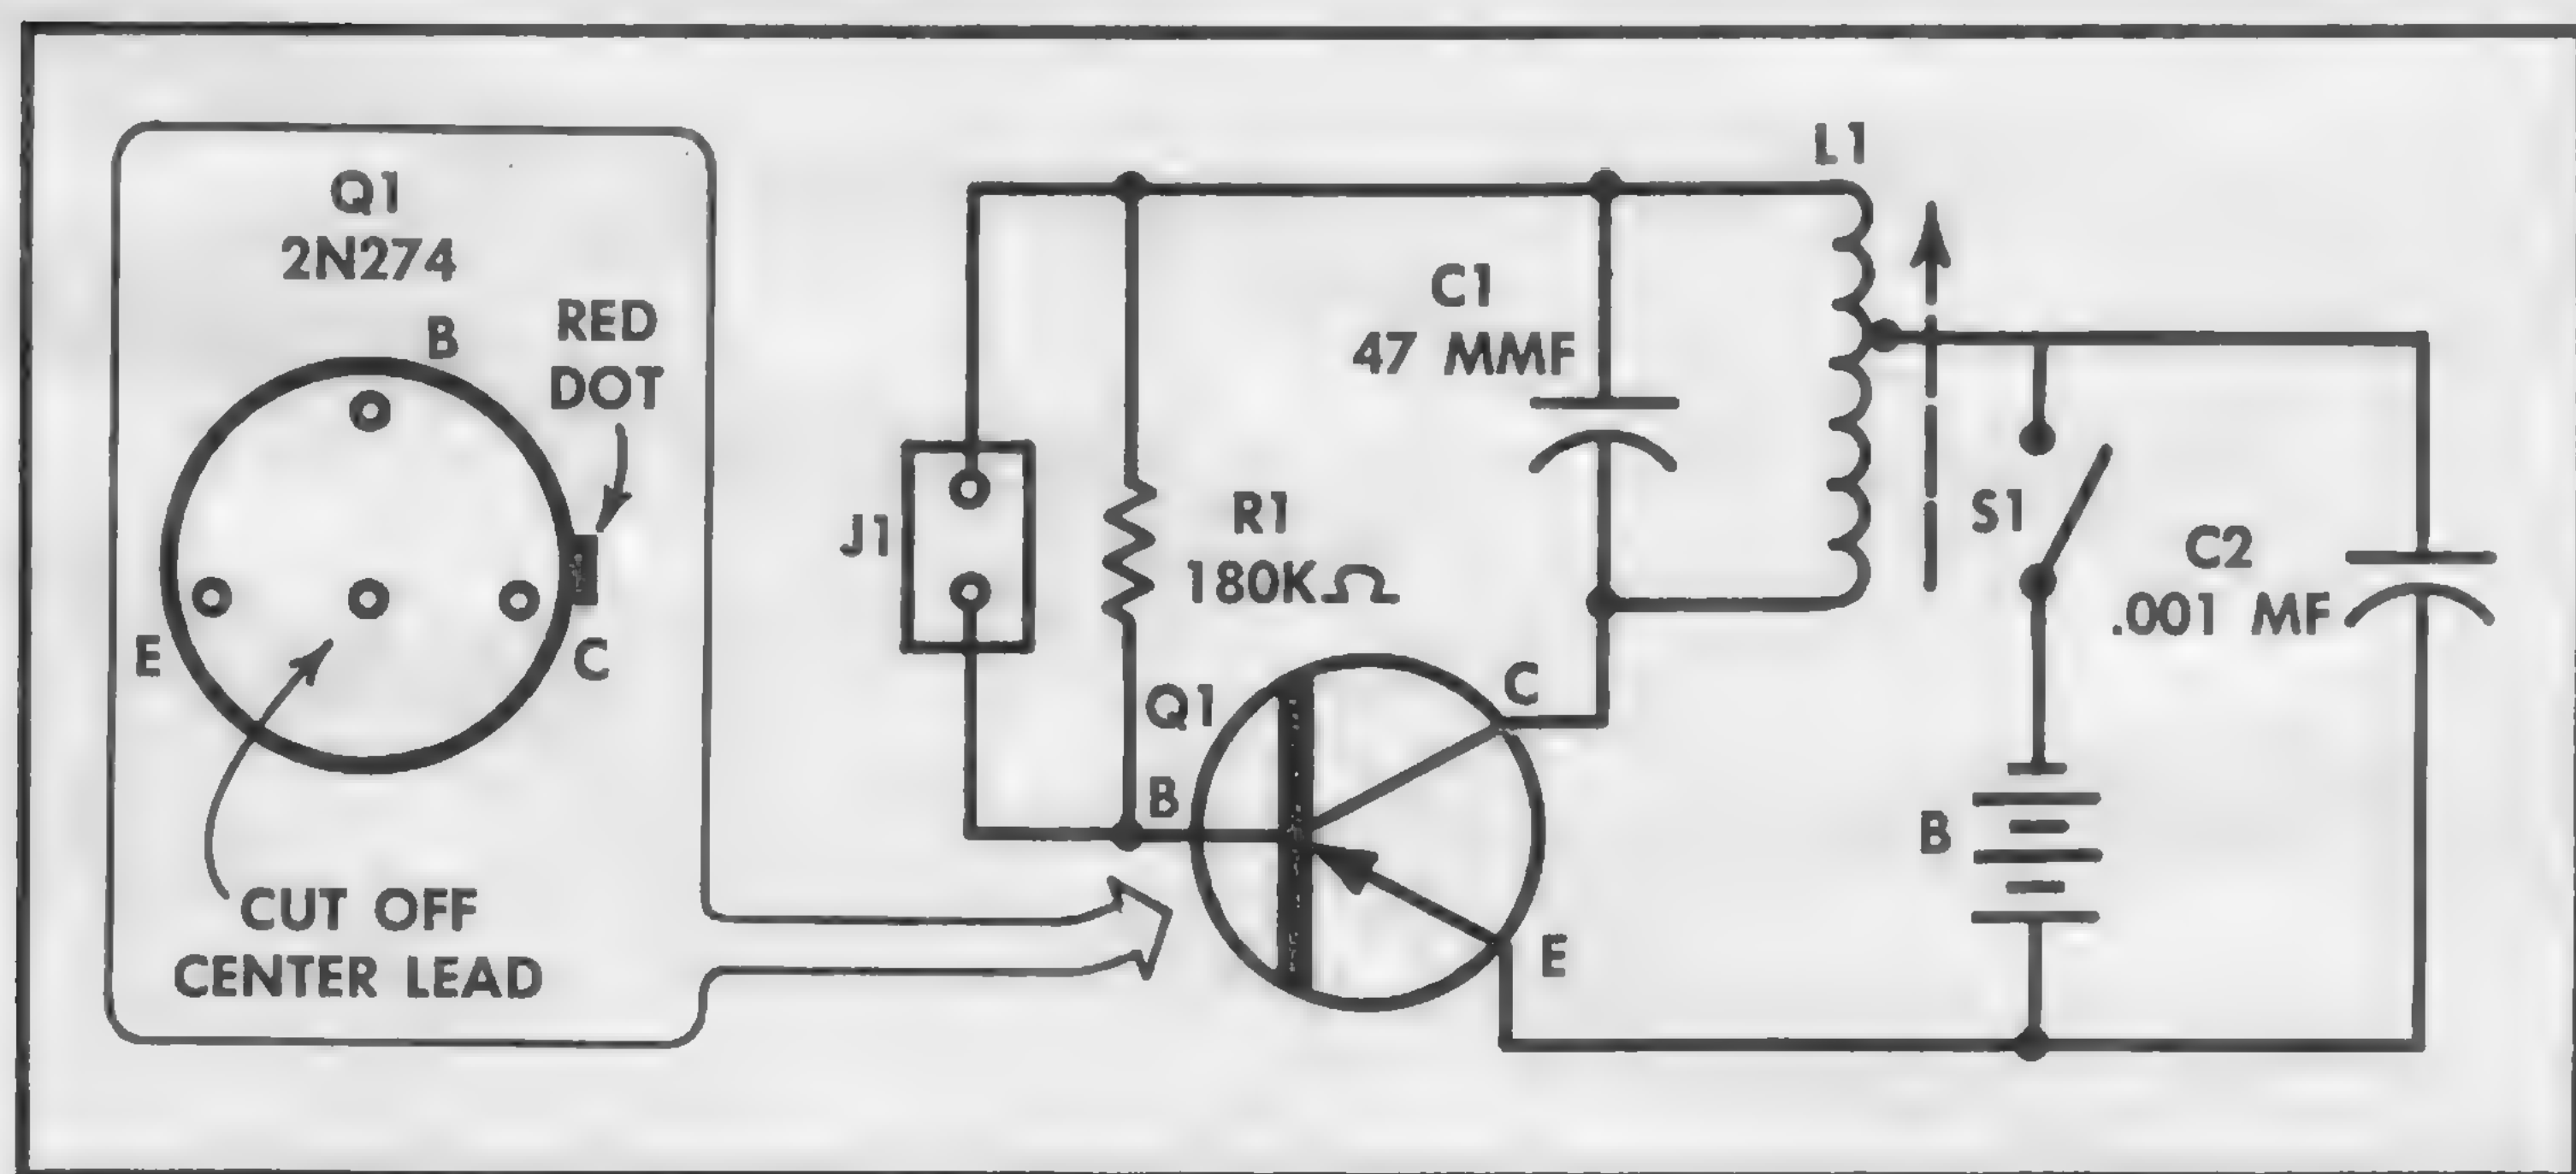

One of the difficulties in aligning tuneable CB dials or in properly aligning a transceiver's front end is the unavailability of an accurate, on-channel frequency. The common signal generator does not have the required accuracy for proper, accurate alignment of the close-spaced CB channels.

The alignment problem is easily solved with an inexpensive, low-power, crystal control oscillator which utilizes the third overtone crystals normally used in the transceiver. The output power is strong enough to be the equivalent of an S-9 signal, yet, it is not strong enough to overload the transceiver's front end.

Construction

Prepare the plastic case by drilling the crystal socket (J1) and oscillator coil (L1) holes in one end. The plastic case is very easily cracked so be very careful when drilling. Feed the drill slowly with a minimum amount of pressure; the holes will actually be drilled by the heat generated at the drill tip. After the holes are drilled, cement a rubber foot, or a small square of rubber in each corner of the case.

Cut a piece of perforated board $2\frac{1}{2} \times 4\frac{1}{4}$ inches and cement the board to the rubber feet (see Figure #1). The feet raise the board from the bottom of the case so that "flea" clips can be used as terminal points, making the wiring easy and insuring a solid, rigid mounting.

Q1, Transistor, RCA 2N274
L1—CTC LS3/30mc. or LS3/A, see text
C1—47 micromicrofarad, Ceramic Disc

R1—180,000 ohms
S1—SPST Slide Switch
J1—Crystal socket to match transmit crystals
B—Battery, 9 volts, Argonne BA2 or equiv.

Misc

Perforated board, Lafayette Radio MS-305
Flea Clips, Lafayette Radio MS-263
Plastic case $2\frac{3}{4} \times 4\frac{5}{8}$ "
#22 enameled wire
Battery terminals

L1 is wound on a CTC (Cambridge) LS3, 30 mega-cycle form. Remove the existing coil from the form; then position the lower ring terminal about $\frac{1}{4}$ inch from the bottom end of the form. Solder one end of a 10" length of #22 enameled wire to the bottom ring terminal and wind six closewound turns. After the sixth turn bring the wire away from the form for a length of three inches, form a loop and wind three more turns in the same direction as the six turn section. Force the top ring terminal against the coil and solder the coil end to this terminal. Scrape the insulation from the loop, twist the wires together and solder them into one thick lead. (While it may seem wasteful to destroy a coil, the form itself, the CTC LS3/A is not generally available. If your parts dealer stocks the LS3/A, by all means use it.)

Mount L1 and J1 on the case tightening the nuts lightly; too much pressure will crack the plastic.

Mount the board components starting with the battery positioned as shown. Place two flea clips on each side of the battery, then pass solid hook-up wire through the clips forming a battery holder. Next, mount the power switch, S1, as illustrated in Figure #3, bending S1's terminals 90° out before mounting.

Complete the wiring following the pictorial. Whenever two wires are connected use a flea clip to insure a rigid mounting. Use care and very little heat when soldering the transistor leads.

The positive battery lead is not soldered until alignment is completed.

Alignment

Connect a 0-10 ma. meter between the battery positive and Q1's emitter lead. Turn on the power—the meter will read between 1 and 2 ma. Turn L1's slug full counter-clockwise and insert an overtone transmit crystal. Adjust L1 until the meter current rises slightly—keep adjusting L1 slightly past the setting which increased the meter indication and tighten L1's locknut.

Remove the meter, solder-in the positive wire and the generator is ready for use.

Use

The generator will produce the equivalent of an S-9 received signal when held near the transceiver's antenna input jack. To reduce the signal for alignment purposes, move the generator away from the transceiver.

To calibrate a tuneable dial of simple oscillator design, plug a channel 9 or 11 crystal into the generator, set the dial to the matching channel and adjust the receiver VFO for maximum signal hiss or S-meter reading. Complex tracking adjustments require two or three spotting frequencies. Following the manufacturer's recommendations plug the appropriate crystal into the generator.

With the alignment generator you can align crystal control receivers without the necessity of an I.F. signal generator. Couple the generator into the receiver and peak the circuits for maximum AVC voltage—the receiver will then be aligned "on the button" for the receive crystals used.

BUILD THIS 2-ELEMENT BEAM

By JIM GIBSON, 2W7610

Contributing Editor, CB Horizons

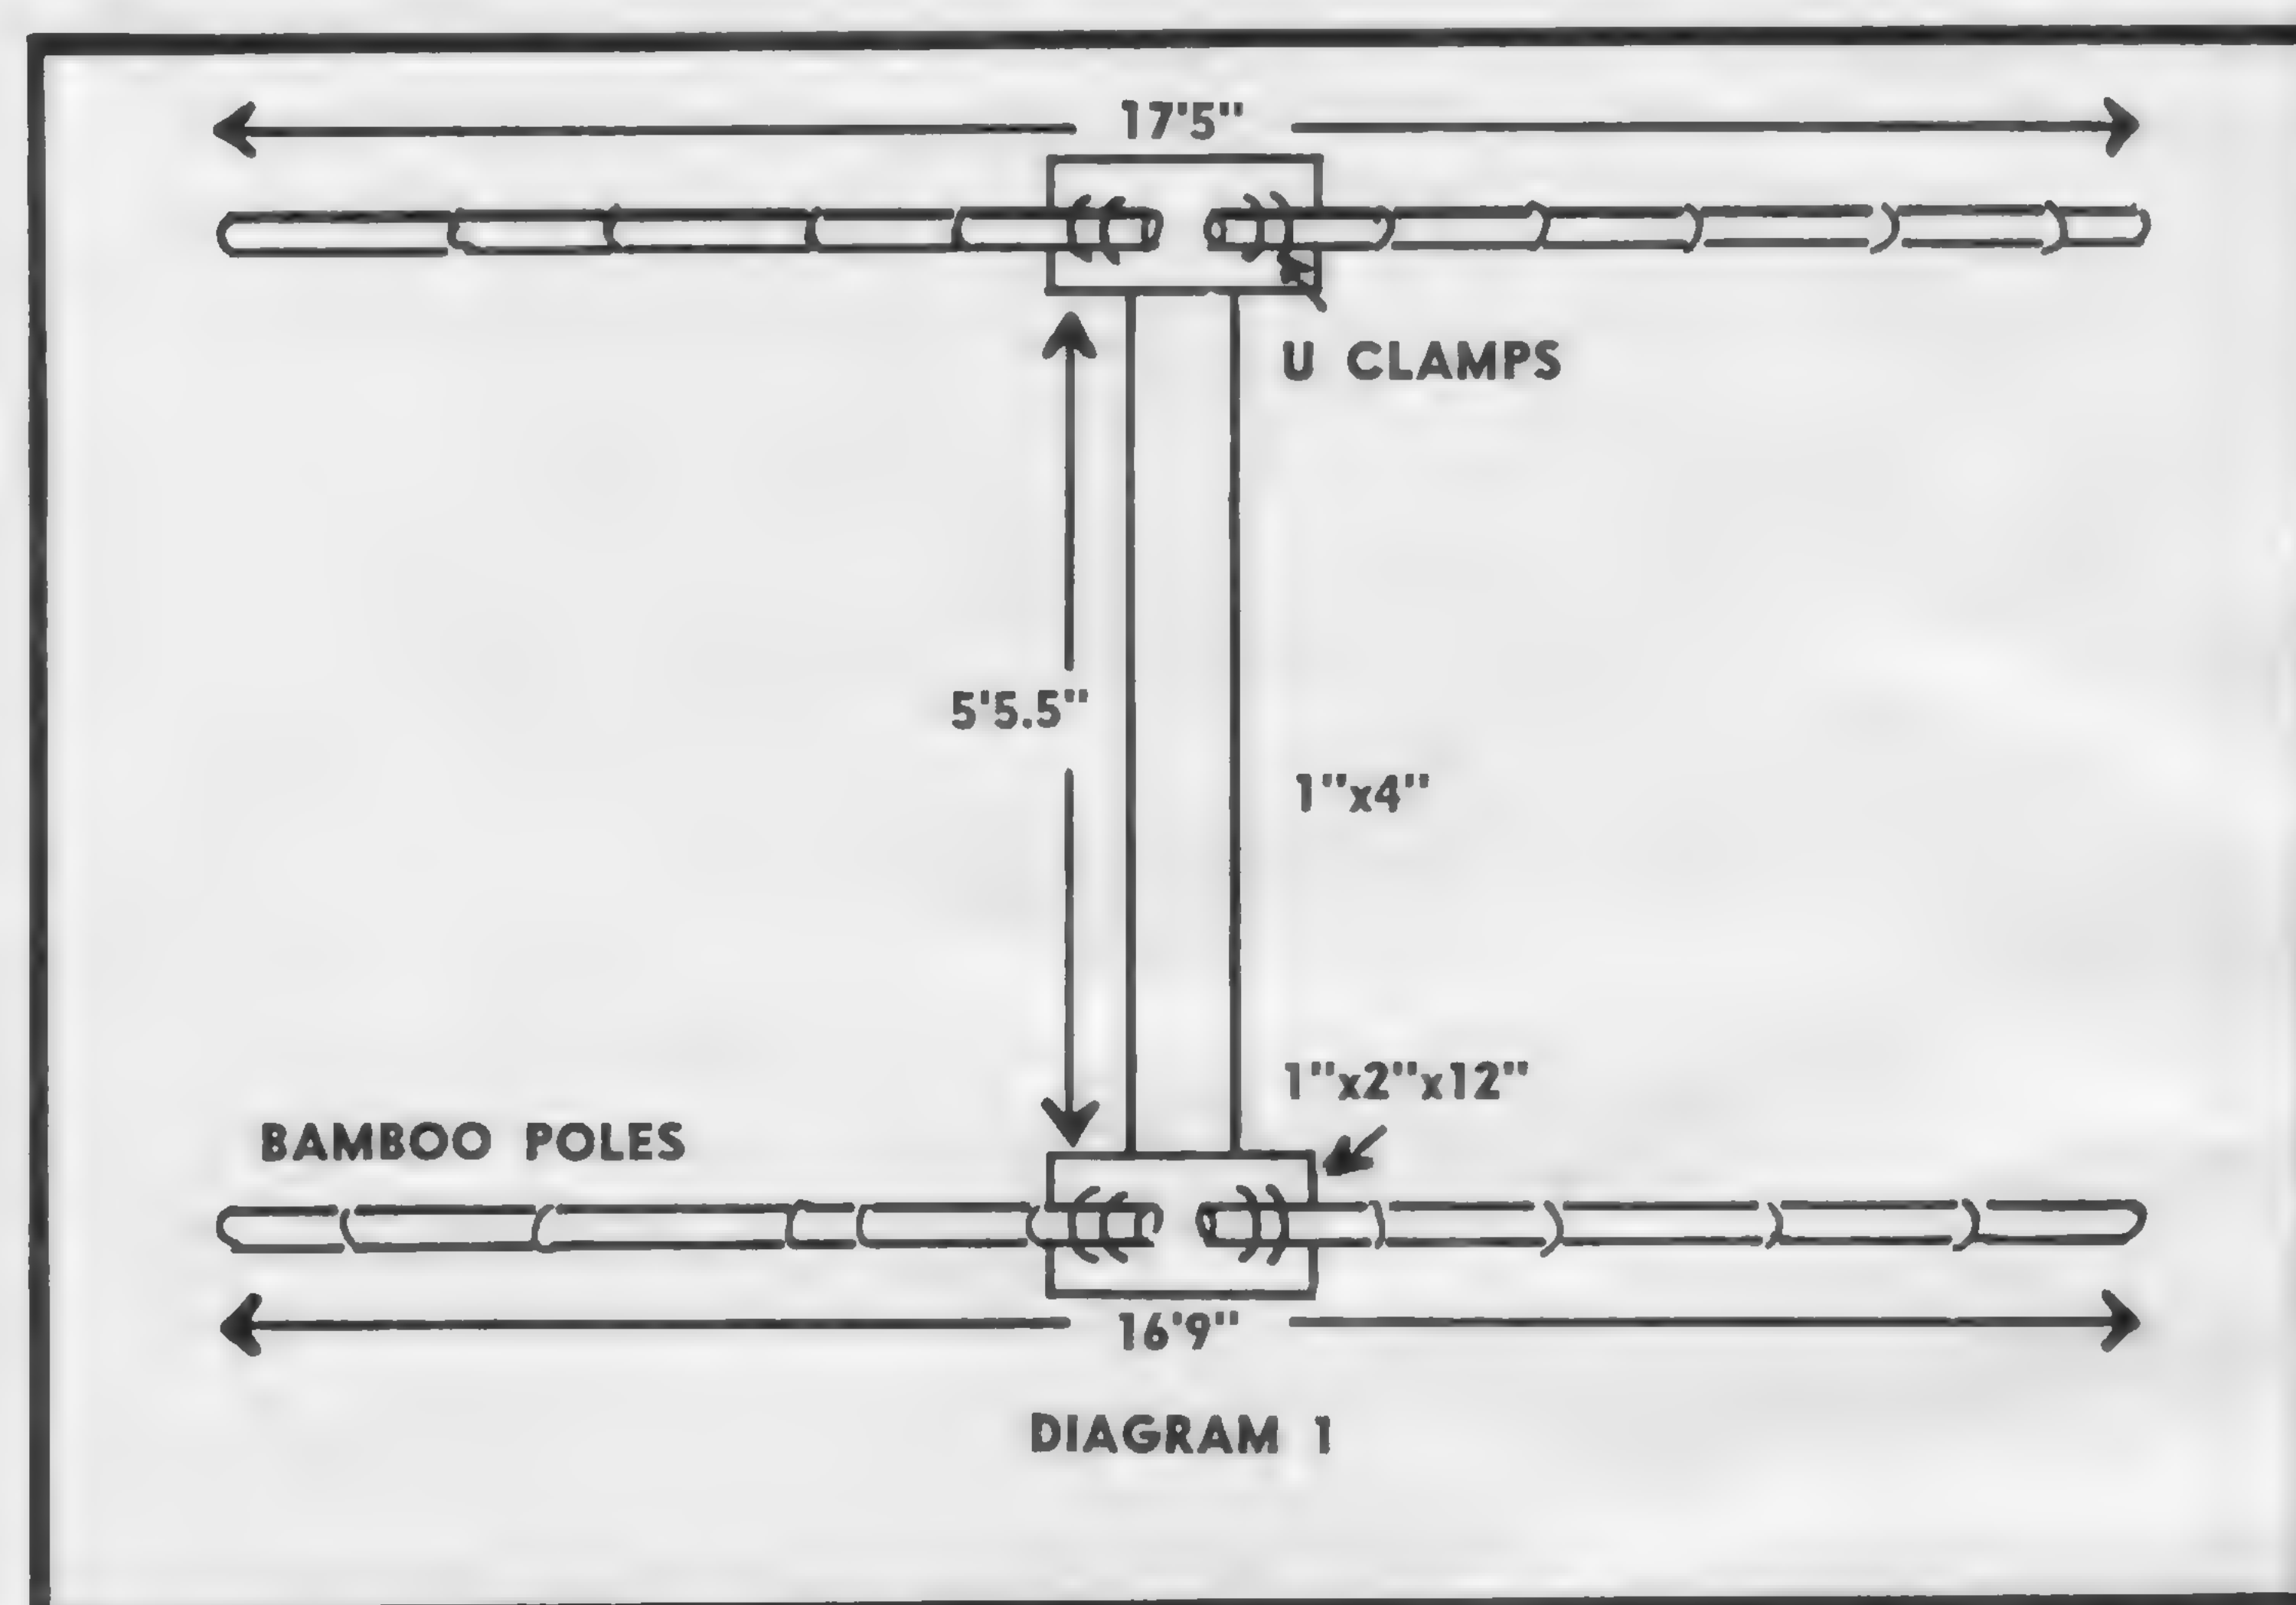

It is the purpose of this article to discuss the construction of a two element ultra-inexpensive beam antenna for the CB service. All drawings show vertical mounting of the beam, although it may be horizontally mounted if you desire. The total cost for the antenna should be under $6.00 if you purchase all of the component parts new. If you by chance have some of the twin-lead, coax and bamboo poles on hand, the cost may be as low as $00.00. For this you will obtain directivity (the ability to place your signal in a given direction towards a given station or region of town) on both receiving and transmitting, and a power gain of approximately 3 db over a dipole, ground plane, coaxial sleeve or what have you.

This is not a beautiful antenna, do not expect raves from your neighbors or CB friends. It is a functional antenna designed to give good-directional performance where directional gain and patterns are required. For example, you live at the far side of a metropolitan region and most of your CB work is done "towards town," the beam would point into the area where you normally reach your "unit two." Another use for the beam . . . you are operating on a crowded channel, and wish to separate several stations coming from different directions. On your ground plane, they all come in well. With the beam you will be able to drop the signal level of stations "outside the antenna's pattern" down as much as 20 db, or more than 3-S units. This is a substantial way to beat interference.

So much for what a simple two element beam will do, now what it won't do. The two element beam will not multiply your power by a fantastic amount. It will not compare to a three, four or five element beam, or twin-three beams. But it will give you a good opportunity to learn why beams work, and how to make improvements to your coverage area without a lot of cost involved.

Best of all, construction is very simple, and there will be lots of time once it is in the air for you to experiment with loading and matching to try to improve its performance.

We'll call this antenna the "Simple-Two'er," or the start of a more powerful signal from your CB station.

Construction

Construction is strictly Rube Goldberg, using bamboo poles and TV twinlead. The major points are covered in the diagram which shows you how simple a beam can be. The twin lead is taped to the bamboo poles to form the conducting and radiating elements. The bamboo serves no useful purpose except to support the twin lead. The twin-lead replaces standard aluminum tubing found in most beams. The 1 x 4 wooden boom serves to separate the driven element (top of drawing) from the directive element (bottom of drawing).

Diagram 1A shows the simple method of matching this antenna to your RG58/U (or RG8/U) coaxial cable, and the actual wiring of the antenna. Note the 1/2 twist of the twin lead which connects the directive element with the driven (dipole) element. This is very important.

Cut one piece of the 300-ohm TV flat lead-in to a length of 17'5" and the other to a length of 16'9". Bare the conductors for a half inch at each end and twist and solder together. Cut one conductor of each length at its exact center as shown in diagram 1A and expose 1/4 inch of the conductor on each side of the cut.

Fasten the lengths of 300-ohm line to the bamboo poles with a wrap of black electrical tape every few feet. Join the opened center leads with a 5'5.5" length of 300 ohm twin lead giving it that half twist. Also connect the RG-58/U feed line and the 8'7" matching stub to the radiator (longer element) with the center conductor of the feed line and the shield of the matching stub to one terminal, and the shield of the feed line and the inner conductor of the matching stub to the other terminal. Connect the inner conductor and the shield of the matching stub together at the opposite end.

Mount the antenna, aim it in the desired direction, and use it for both transmitting and receiving. My friend . . . you are on the beam!

HANDBOOK FOR CB CLUBS

Numerous Citizens Band Clubs are being organized throughout the United States monthly, but how many of these Clubs are really working for a better Citizens Band and how many are actually hurting the band? This is a question that even the FCC may be asking.

A CB Club should be dedicated to the betterment of the band in all of its actions regardless of membership persuasion which always exists. Many times this is hard to overcome, but a well organized Club and its officers should encounter no real trouble in dealing with these barriers. This report is devoted to aiding the already organized Club and the Club in the process of organization.

What A Club Can Do

Functional activities of a good CB club include coordinating and orderly use of the channels in a given area, monitoring, helping members with operating and technical problems, disseminating information on new FCC regulations and opinions, offering advice on CB radio to interested persons in the area, operating a crystal bank, and aiding in any emergency situation which may arise whereby CB'ers may be of assistance.

Pre-Organization Planning

To organize a Citizens Band club requires many hours of pre-meeting work by a handful of interested CB'ers. These few should have enough interest to go about the entire organizational functions without getting discouraged easily. Interest in a club is the main starting point and at least four persons should be used as a start.

When the thinking stage of an organization has started, a meeting of the small group should be called to talk over the possibility of calling a general meeting. At this meeting a committee should be selected to call upon the CB'ers in the area and inform them of your intentions to start a club. At the initial meeting with the CB'ers, it should be pointed out that their support is needed to make this organization a success. They should be informed of the meeting place and that the meeting will start at a certain time (and will start at this hour sharp) regardless of who is there. This shows the prospective member that a partial organization has been started and is off to a good beginning. Always leave the prospective member with some anxiety to attend the meeting, the best way is to let him know that he will be part of the club and his views are essential and wanted. Explain that no officers have been elected and that you and your buddies are only acting as organizers and not officers.

When selecting an initial meeting place, choose a place that is within a comfortable driving distance for all members and also select a place that will not offend anyone. By this I mean do not select a Tavern as there may be some offended by the presence of drinks, do not select a church building as some might take offense if this is not their religion, nor is it a good idea to select a business place as this might give the impression that something is going to be sold. Good meeting places can be found at Boy Scout headquarters, Grange Halls, Chamber of Commerce buildings, American Legion or fraternal halls, or a good restaurant. Your home would also suffice but this has its drawbacks if there is a large crowd.

The First Meeting

The time of your first general meeting has now come up, but there is still plenty of work to be completed before the meeting. A sign should be placed where everyone can spot it so that there are no lost souls (a monitor can be set up to guide the lost ones in on time). This leaves no one with the excuse, "I couldn't find the meeting place so I went home."

As the guests arrive, see that they are greeted by one of the organizers to let them know that they are welcome. Make sure that everyone is greeted. To save time in making introductions it is always a good idea to have a small card and pin handed to everyone so that they can write their name and call numbers on the card and pin it to their coat. Also make sure that everyone entering the building to attend the meeting sign their name, call and address to the register. This provides a list of those who were interested enough to attend. If you have any literature printed about the meeting, see that it is passed out as the CB'ers enter. This provides everyone with some knowledge of what is trying to be accomplished and can lead to some interesting ideas and views from those in attendance.

The first order of business should be the introduction of the organizers followed by a call for a motion of an "Acting Chairman." Never take it for granted that one of the original group is the Acting Chairman. If no motion from the floor is introduced for an Acting Chairman then the motion should come from one of the organizers and call for one of them to head the group at least through the first meeting. The Chairman selected should select an Acting Recording Secretary who will take notes on the proceedings, these notes to become a part of the club once it is organized. After the Secretary is selected the Chairman should explain to the group that the reason the meeting was called is to organize a Citizens Band Club and that the club is needed in this area to band together the many persons with one interest. It should also be explained during this initial speech just why a club is being organized for the betterment of CB in general and not for any purposes other than CB.

A general discussion is bound to follow the speech by the Acting Chairman, and the Secretary should make every effort to record as many suggestions heard from the floor as possible. These suggestions and ideas aid in the making of your club. Everyone who wishes to be heard should be given the chance even if their views are contrary to the views of the majority. No two persons have the same trend of thought. When everyone has had a chance to speak, the Chairman should entertain a motion from the floor that another meeting be called at which time Officers will be nominated and elected, the club named, and the first order of business will commence. After this motion is made the Chairman will close the meeting and thank everyone for their attendance and views.

After The Meeting

Now that your initial meeting is over, the work again starts for everyone at the first meeting. The word should be passed that the next meeting is called and that everyone who did not attend the first meeting is welcome and should attend the second meeting. Then each one present at the first meeting should be contacted, by mail, and asked to bring along a friend.

Don't be discouraged if you hear talk on the band about your meeting, this is bound to happen because as mentioned earlier, you can't please everyone. The best way to defeat this talk is to explain to everyone, not over the air, that the reason for this talk is the reason for a club, an attempt to iron out everyone's problems (although some will never be convinced.)

You, as an organizer, should stay out of any non-meeting arguments. Tell everyone that the issue will be settled at the meeting. Also see that the second meeting is held within two to three weeks after the initial group meeting. This is essential so that you do not lose the interest of those who attended the first meeting.

The Second Club Meeting

The meeting place has been set for the first business meeting of your new CB club and the potential members are starting to arrive. Again, as we did at the first meeting, we have an official of the new club greet everyone at the door. In this case it should be the Acting Chairman we appointed at the last meeting.

When the hour arrives for the meeting to start, the Acting Chairman calls the meeting to order and asks that the Acting Secretary read the minutes of the last meeting which was the first meeting of the organization. When the Secretary finishes this, the Chairman entertains a motion for acceptance of the minutes, as read if there are no additions or omissions. The first business meeting of any organization differs from all others because of the amount of business that must be taken care of, in this case we will go through the entire procedure for sake of clarification.

Officers for the club must be elected or appointed for the control of the club and club business. This a must at the early stages so that the function of the club can begin at once. The Acting Chairman will call for nominations for the office of President or Chairman, whichever you choose to call the head man, and the secretary will prepare ballots to be distributed among the persons present. An immediate election is held and the votes counted and results announced. Usually a motion is made from the floor to have the Acting Chairman elected by unanimous decision. In this case all must agree or the election takes place.

After a permanent Chairman or President is chosen then the new head takes over and relieves the acting Chairman of all duties.

This procedure is followed by the nomination of the remaining Officers and their election. This is done in a group; not one at a time as in the case of the Chairman. The Officers usually elected are: Vice President, Secretary, Treasurer and Master at Arms. Only after the election of these officers will the regular business take place.

The first order of business should be setting yearly dues, naming the club and appointing a committee to set up your By-laws.

In coming to a decision of the dues, it should be kept in mind that the higher the dues, the less the membership. This sometimes is an advantage, but in most cases you want all the potential members to be able to join. You can make other less restrictive rules to keep the membership to a level without high dues. This we will discuss later in the article.

After the dues are set, the Secretary and Treasurer should start their drive for full fledged members by having all present sign up for membership. There may be some that do not wish to join at this meeting, but don't question the fact as a few may be a little short of cash. Explain that only members paid in full are eligible for holding Office and working on Committees, this should aid the membership drive at the first meeting.

When everyone has been given the opportunity to sign up, the Chairman should then select a committee of not less than 4 persons to act as the By-Laws committee. This group should be instructed to meet as many times as needed between this meeting and the next to come up with a proposed set of by-laws. The By-Laws should be for the benefit of the club and all members and be read at the next meeting so that additions or deletions can be made. It will be at least 3 meetings before your club can accept a good set of By-Laws.

The Club Name

It should be taken up also at the first meeting as to the name of the club. In doing this watch that your name does not drift away from the ideas of your organization. For instance you might not want to call a Citizens Band Club, "The Mighty Mights" or "The Blue Angles" because they give no indication of what you are. Very good names are found throughout the United States using the name of the City, County or Area, such as "The Blank County Citizen Band Association" or "The Blank City Radio Club" or even, "The 5 Watters of Blank County". I am sure that you already have a number of names in mind.

Now you have a club, a name, and officers, not to forget the treasury you collected. You are well on your way to being the best club in the nation, let's hope.

Incorporate?

The question of incorporating your club should be brought up and discussed at an early meeting. You might wish to invite an attorney to be present to answer questions on the pros and cons of such a move. Briefly, the main advantages of incorporating is that it limits the liability of the club to the organizations assets—thereby eliminating any personal responsibility of the members should someone get hurt during a club function.

Incorporating as a non-profit corporation will necessitate your filing special tax forms and conducting the club's business in a prescribed manner. Articles of Constitution and other papers will have to be drawn up by a lawyer, who will file the material in the proper channels. You can expect to spend about $150 in incorporating.

Polishing Up Your Club

It is your responsibility to see to it that your club stands out and betters Citizens Band.

Conducting meetings in an orderly manner, you will find, is essential to the continued success. Remember no one likes to constantly attend meetings that are all business and no social activities. Start out right and plan all your meetings in advance so that you can relay this plan to the members at the previous meeting. This will encourage the members to bring along friends who may have an interest in the CB club.

To conduct a good meeting is an art and this art can be learned by purchasing a copy of "Roberts Rule of Order, Revised", available at most book stores. This book explains all you need to know about conducting the proper meeting, and all about proper procedure.

Club Activities

Your club will need activities; this you will find out at the first meeting. CB'ers thrive on action, and action they must be given. To give a few examples of activities I have chosen a very successful east coast Citizen Band club as a basis for this portion of the article.

The President should form an activity committee, which will be made up of 3 or 4 good members. These members will arrange all of the activities other than meeting nights. It is their duty to see that the activities are for all and not just a few members. Activities such as Jamborees, Picnics, Parties, Outdoor meets and CD come under this committee.

When planning an activity, plan well in advance so that every member has a chance to make plans to attend. A successful outing has months of planning while a picnic can have as little as a week of planning.

The activity committee should also contact the local CD and other law enforcement agencies in the area and let them know that you have a radio club at their disposal in case of need. You can work out various drills with the various agencies approached.

Parties are a favorite with CB'ers and should be well planned so that the wife and husband can both attend. "Stag" parties are always a failure because the Mrs. has to stay home. Besides this, you will find that many members

YOU LIKE CB?

What a silly question — of course you do, you wouldn't be reading this Callbook if you didn't.

If you want to be assured of keeping abreast of what's going on in-and-around CB, there's only one place you can obtain this information presented completely and in a manner which will be easy for you to comprehend and put to use. We're speaking of CB HORIZONS MAGAZINE, the CB Radio Magazine.

There's no hokey-pokey in CBH — no high-falootin' technical razza-ma-tazz which you won't be able to figure out, no complicated construction projects which defy completion — or won't work. All articles are written in a down to earth style which you will appreciate and our construction projects are easy (and will work).

Each month we have pages and pages of features for and about CB'ers, their clubs and activities; useful construction projects, late FCC news (we have a Washington correspondent), new products, (truthful) equipment tests, hints and kinks on getting the most amount of signal in and out of your base and mobile stations, and much, much, more!

You can be part of CB HORIZONS — you'll find that it's a necessity around your station. Costs only $4 for 12 issues. Use the form below — or any piece of paper if you don't want to chop up the Callbook.

find "stag" parties in bad taste (while others will jump at the chance to attend). Always keep the cost of a party down to where it will not be a burden on the treasury or the member who attends. A fee of one or two dollars per couple always brings out a crowd. The refreshments can be simple if the activities at the party are fun packed.

Club Papers

Eventually your club will want to publish a newsletter for the members—this is a splendid idea but takes a lot of work. The major portion of the work is getting someone with some time and talent to sit down and publish it. It need not be more than a mimeographed sheet at first; later on you can investigate the costs involved in vari-typing the paper and having it printed via the offset process (which is generally less expensive for small jobs than "letterpress").

Items for a club paper are easily furnished by members and should include a "chit-chat" column, technical tips, reports of club activities, personality profiles and ads! Yes, ads!

You would be surprised at the number of local CB dealers who will be anxious to advertise in a club paper. Your rates should be based upon the number of papers you will distribute. A good start is to figure your advertising at 5c per paper for a quarter of a page. Therefore, if you will distribute 100 papers, a 1/4-page ad would cost $5.00, with "rate breaks" to let 1/2-page go for $7.50 and a full page for $10.00. By no means limit the distribution of your paper to members, send one to all CB'ers in your area. It will keep them informed of the club's activities and may eventually bring them into the ranks.

Actually, the club paper should easily pay for itself on the first issue and even surpass it's cost on subsequent issues. The club can put this money in the treasury—and save it for a day when a worthwhile project calls for some extra loot. Another way of bringing money into the treasury is by the club sponsoring the selling of CB HORIZONS to the members—the magazine offers a substantial sales commission coupled with a subscription rate discount to CB clubs. Write to the magazine for details.

What ever you do, do it with the best of your ability and you can never go wrong. In order to keep the activities going with fresh ideas, it is suggested that the Activity Committee be refreshed with new members every two months. Variety is the spice of a CB club.

Pitfalls

Getting back to conducting a proper meeting, I will list a few standing rules that are not listed in any books. These rules are eventually found by the trials and tribulations of many Clubs.

1. Always start a meeting on time.
2. Let everyone have their say as long as they are in order.
3. The President or presiding officer should never let a meeting get out of control.
4. Keep your meeting as brief as possible without omitting any business.
5. Invite speakers or have movies at as many meetings as possible to retain interest.
6. DO NOT LET A SMALL GROUP TAKE OVER A MEETING, this could lead to a downfall of your meetings and club.
7. Always permit guests at your meetings so that you do not get a name of being a select group that snubs others.

8. Make sure that a Treasurer's report and minutes of the previous meeting are read at each meeting, even though the meeting might have been called for social activities only.
9. Each member, when addressing the Chairman or group, should stand.
10. Respect your Officers and your members when addressing them at meetings.

These simple rules always leave a good meeting behind and everyone will look forward to the next meeting. The greater the attendance at any meeting the greater the chance of a highly successful organization.

Dis-Advantages Of Clubs

There are, or I should say can be, dis-advantages to CB clubs. Sometimes they tend to form cliques—small factions within the organization which shun other members. Or, in some cases, several members who don't like a few of the things which all the other members vote for, pull out and form a "rival club" for the sole purpose of razzing the original group. This, of course, leads to friction on the band and poor communications for all. These things can usually happen in a poorly run club with weak leadership. If your club has a definite and useful purpose, members who are willing to work for their club, and alert and active leadership, these dis-advantages cannot possibly befall your group.

We have attempted to solve many problems of CB clubs, we know that we have not touched upon many issues; this is because every group of CB'ers have their own problems, and the solutions will have to be worked out individually.

Here's hoping that your club will rank high on the list of CB clubs throughout the nation.

BUILD THIS ONE-TUBE BOOSTER

By Jim Gibson, 2W7610
Contributing Editor, CB Horizons

Our 6CF6 pre-amp was originally constructed on a 4 by 5 by 3 inch Minibox. The only components that need to be mounted on the top of the box are the tube socket, a 140 uufd midget variable capacitor, a 1-mh r.f. choke, and a 2000 ohm 1-watt potententionmeter. Power for the one tube unit it taken from your transceiver receiver supply, and should be 125 volts. The power drain will be approximately twenty mils for the B-plus supply and 6.3 volts at .3 amps. We have yet to run into a transceiver supply which cannot stand the extra drain.

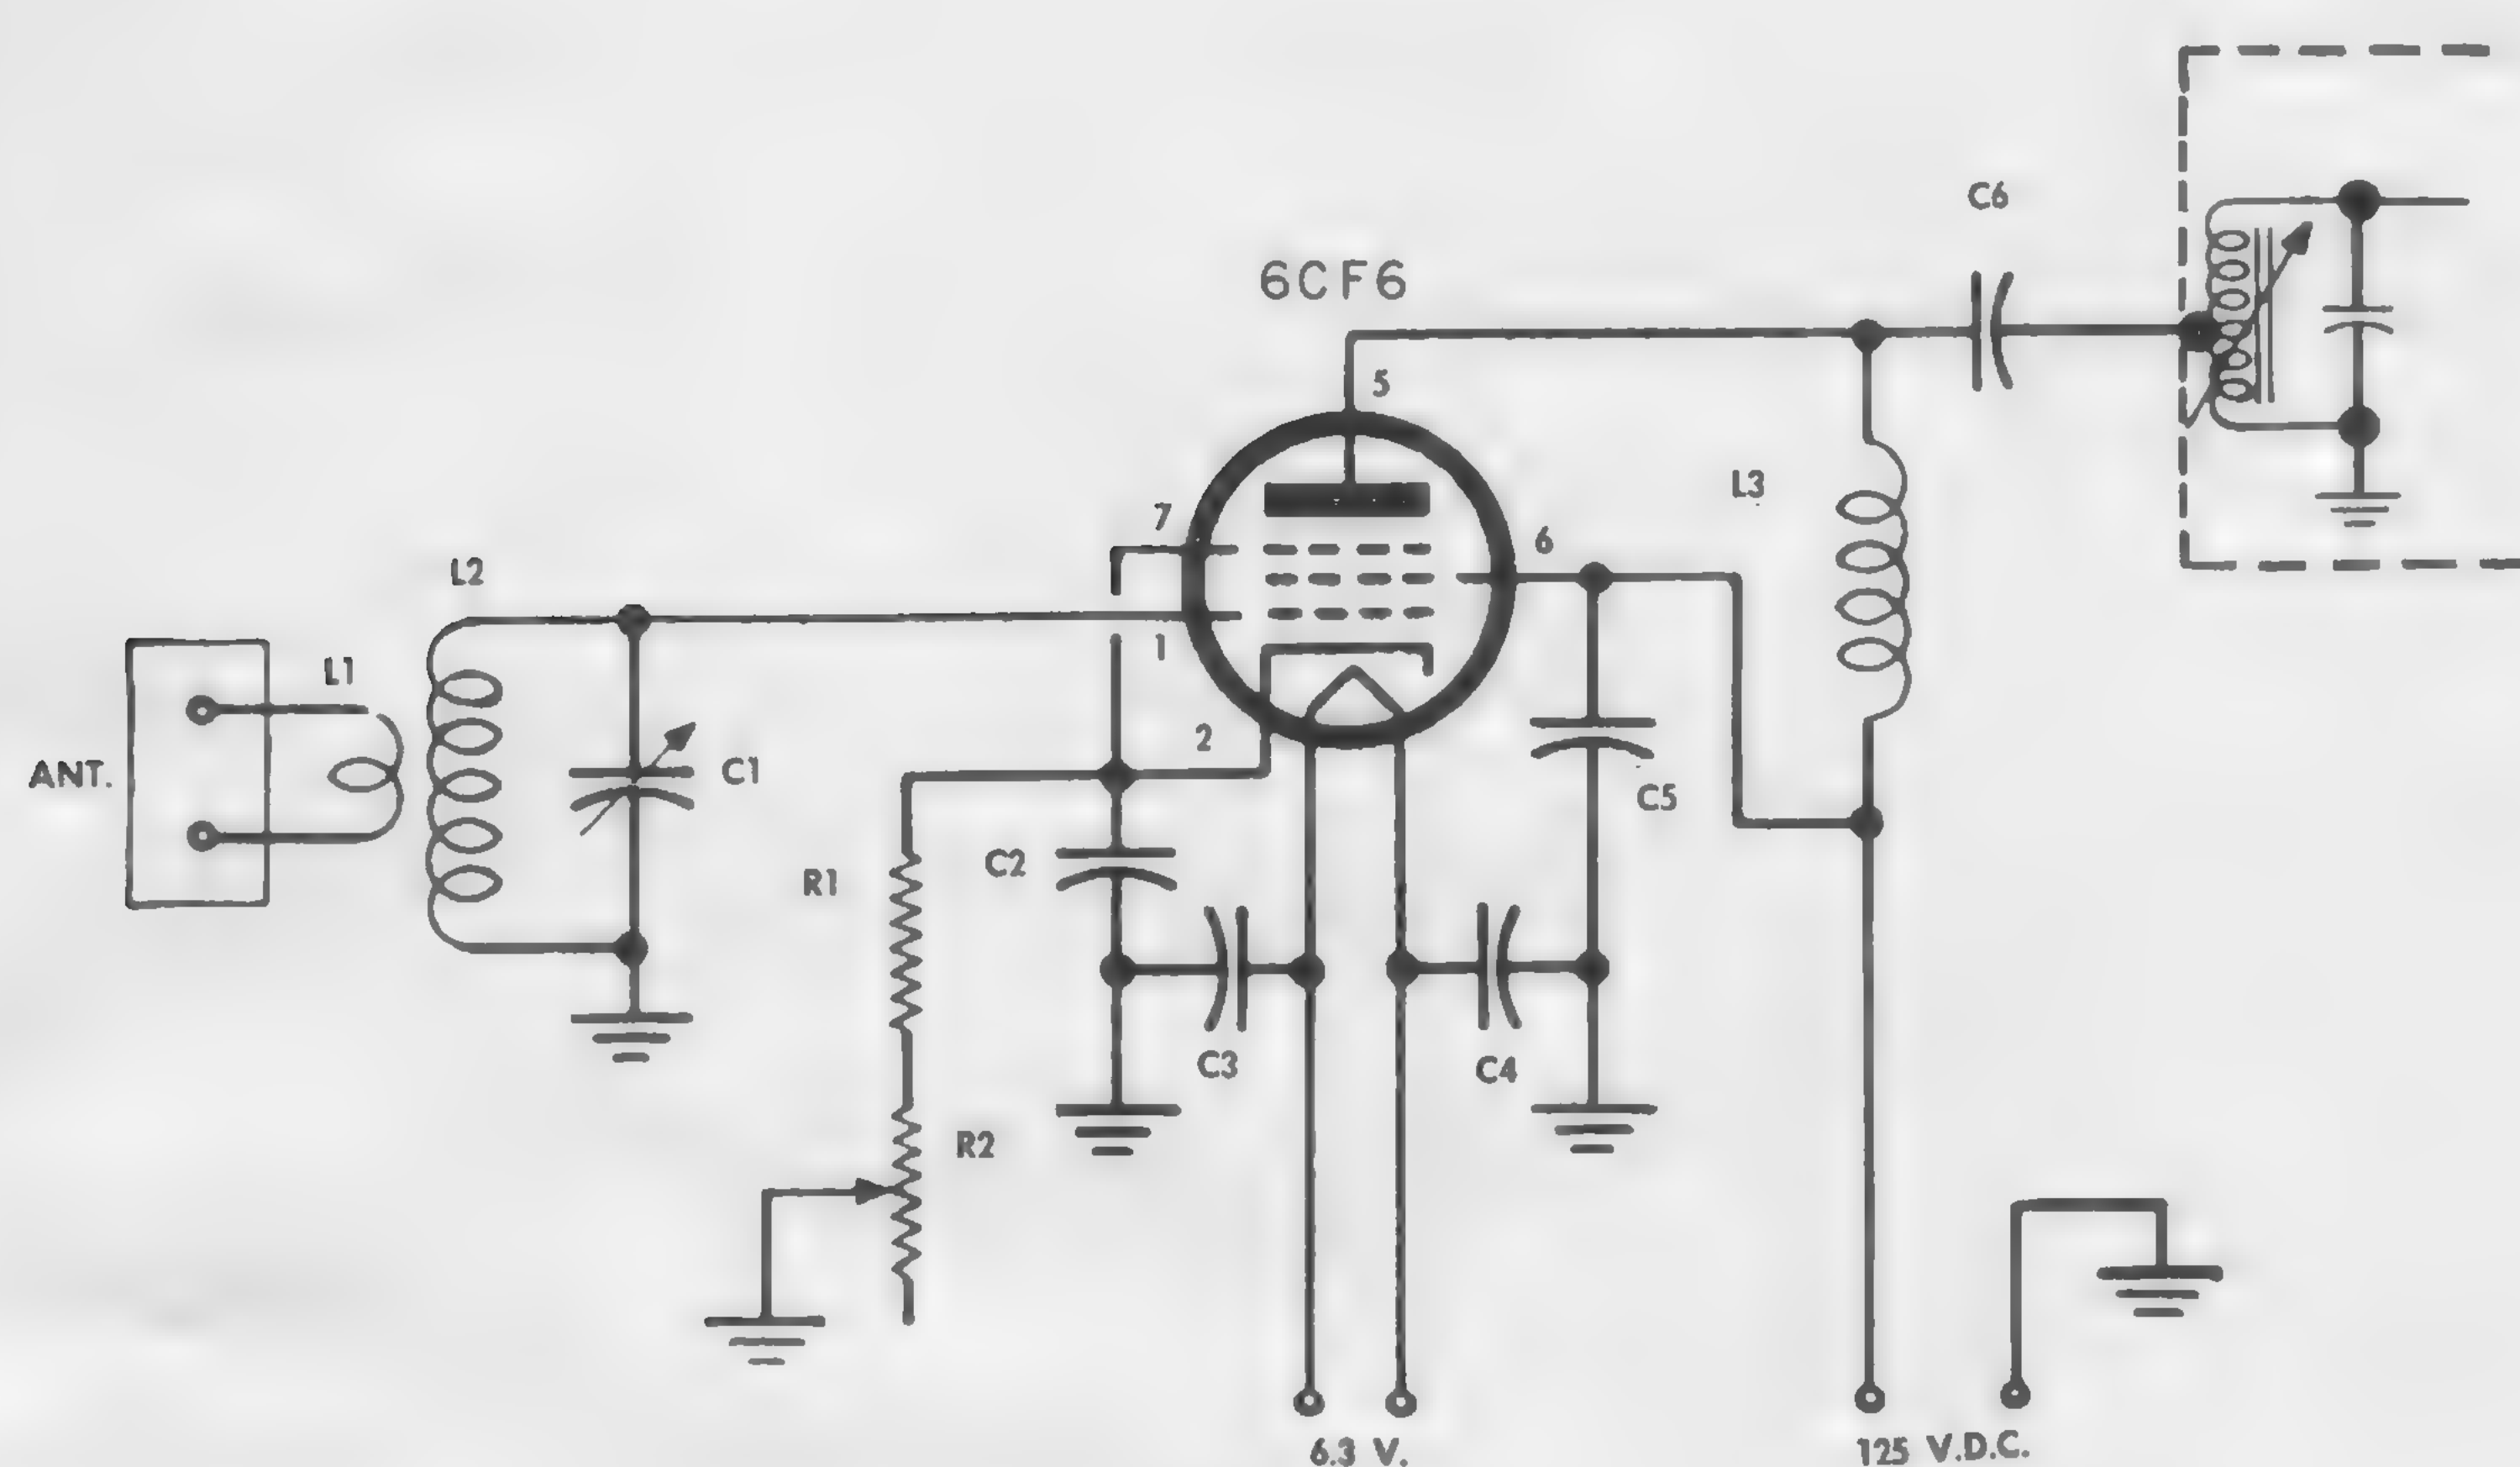

Coils L1 and L2 are fabricated from a 10.5 turn length of B&W number 3015 "Miniductor." Count off three turns and cut the wire, but not the plastic insulation strips. Leave the three turns remaining on the short end of the coil form "as are" as this will form L1, the link to to the antenna. From the three turns remaining on the short end, unwind 1/4 turn (the wire between the end of the coil, and the next plastic insulator) for eventual connection to a short piece of RG-58 or RG-59 coaxial cable, which will run to the receive side of the antenna relay.

From the 7.5 turns remaining on the "longend" count off one-half turn (the wire between the end tip on each end and two plastic spacers) from each end leaving a $6\frac{1}{2}$ turn coil to form L2. Don't forget to leave the plastic insulation strips intact to hold L1 and L2 together.

Solder the end of L2 closest to L1 to the rotor terminal of C1 and the opposite lead on to the stator terminal of C1 (see schematic). Connect L1 to a two terminal tie point connector mounted on the left hand side of the chassis just left of the C1-L1, L2 combination. The RG-58 or RG-59 coax from the antenna relay will connect to these same terminal points as indicated in the schematic.

Now connect a similar piece of hook-up wire (as we assume you used between L1 and the tie points) between C6 and a similar tie point mounted for the output.

PARTS LIST

C1—140 uuf. midget variable capacitor (Bud 1876 or equivalent)
 C2, C3, C4, C5, C6—0.005 uf; 600-volt ceramic disc capacitor
 L1— $2\frac{1}{2}$ turns of No. 20 wire, 1" diameter, $\frac{1}{8}$ " from bottom of L2 (part of B&W No. 3015 Miniductor—see text)
 L2— $6\frac{1}{2}$ turns of No. 20 wire, 1" diameter, (part of B&W Miniductor—see text)
 L3—1 mh r.f. choke (National R-300S or equivalent)
 R1—100-ohm, $\frac{1}{2}$ watt resistor
 R2—2000-ohm, 1 watt potentiometer (sensitivity control)
 One—6CF6 tube
 $\frac{1}{4}$ "x5"x3" minibox or equivalent, misc. terminal strips, tie points, tube socket and hook-up wire.

The output tie point should be mounted across the chassis from the input tie point, to keep the amplifier from oscillating.

To start the pre-amp booster perking connect a short length of coax (mentioned previously) from the receiver side of the antenna relay to the input tie point terminals on the amplifier.

Next connect an identical piece of coax from the output tie points to the antenna input coil on the first stage of the receiver in the transceiver. You have now, effectively, placed the pre-amp booster in series with the wire which originally ran from the antenna relay to the receiver on your transceiver.

Set your transceiver dial (or crystal receive position) to a channel in the middle of the band, and tune C1 for the greatest increase in background noise in the speaker. For 27.100 mc, or the approximate middle of the band, you will find the variable capacitor (C1) peaks at about $\frac{1}{8}$ th mesh. Once this is peaked you may leave it alone as it is sufficiently broad to cover the entire band without re-setting.

SPEAK CORRECTLY, BRIEFLY

By Art Brothers, 11W0759
Associate Editor, CB Horizons

One of the largest interference generators on the CB channels today is the unnecessary yak, yak, and yuk yuk heard as stations sign off, call or "turn it over" to another station. If CB'ers would use correct procedure with call signs, we would cut our on the air time in half. This in turn would mean half the interference and much quieter channels—or twice as many using a given channel—Heaven forbid!

After a careful check of the rules and regulations and talking with the FCC as well as commercial operators, the following procedural facts were brought to light and it would behoove us all to take note:

- 1. All CB licenses are for mobile stations. Even your base station is a mobile as far as the FCC is concerned.
- 2. All CB units operated under the authority of a given license are mobile. The FCC doesn't care which one is which and in monitoring for violations they don't care who is operating the transmitter—if something happens it is the licensee who is going to get the axe, not the operator.

Thus, it is completely unnecessary to use calls which say, "This is 25W2222 base calling 25W2222 mobile." As far as the FCC is concerned, if a station comes on the air and calls 25W2222 and then stands by, the station that called was also 25W2222. There is no such thing, then, as a mobile unit two, a mobile unit one, or a base control unit and etc. ad nauseum. If such numbers are necessary for identification between the users of the system, this is fine. But, keeping in mind the rules and regulations which say all calls should be brief and to the point, the FCC is not going to continue to let calls go by which consist of long drawn out "this is so-and-so base control unit one calling so and so mobile unit five and standing by." Good grief, when you stand by, you don't have to say so. Just stop talking. The person at the other end knows you or you wouldn't be talking to him. Thus you don't have to identify to each other. And if you are both using the same call or license authority, the FCC doesn't care who is on the microphone or which unit it is either. As mentioned, they are going to fry the owner of the license!

Thus, a simple, short call will do. "25W2222 come in, over" is all you have to give when looking for your mobile unit. If he hears you he calls back and can say simply "25W2222." If you hear this, you know he has heard you and is standing by. You then give him the message and do not use any call signs either at the start of the message or the end. He may come back and ask you a question. You may answer. At no time do you mention call signs. At the conclusion of your talk, the last one to talk, or the base will sign by saying, simply, "25W2222 clear".

This is the accepted method recognized by the FCC. Amateur methods, on CB, are not proper, and in fact are considered to be a violation of the regulations pertaining to excess verbiage.

The second major gripe from the FCC is a habit which has come from the military, but where it got started will never be known. This procedure of calling a station and receiving no reply—coming back on the air and making the statement "25W2222 no contact". The FCC is clearly on record as being against this practice. In a recent bulletin circulated in the marine field, the FCC stated that such a practice should stop at once. It said that when a called station doesn't answer, if the calling station comes back on the air to make the statement that he didn't have a conversation with the other station, it is just so much cluttering up of the airwaves and it is obvious to those listening that no contact had taken place.

Take pride in being brief. Take pride in your ability to use the bands as a professional. Know that the frustrated desire of most of us, at first, is to grab the mike and talk, talk, regardless of what we say—that our sub-conscious knows that as we do so, the "entire world" can be listening, and that we thereby become important. Take note of the fact that our sub-conscious is dead wrong, that in general we are the same old bore. And if we could hear ourselves on a tape recording we could soon learn.

The mark of a pro is the mark of brevity. Let's be pros. If we do we can be assured the FCC isn't going to bother us about our use of the band, as brevity is the first sign that the frequencies are being used as the FCC wants them to be used. Also, you will all become increasingly aware of your own ability and proud of the fact that you have mastered something that, really, is a difficult thing. Amateur radio operators, as a majority, never do learn how to speak correctly—briefly! You can.

1962 CB EQUIPMENT SURVEY

We list here the basic specifications for each piece of CB equipment on the market about which information could be obtained. This is by no means intended to be a catalogue as we have omitted a number of features from many of the units—it is rather a guide to keep you familiarized with the present day CB market.

More detailed information on any of the equipment listed in this directory may be obtained only by writing directly to each of the manufacturers involved and mentioning The 1962 CB HORIZONS CALLBOOK. Do not write directly to this publication for the information as we are unable to furnish same.

This Directory is brought up to date each month in the pages of CB HORIZONS MAGAZINE, available at $4 per year from HORIZONS PUBLICATIONS, P.O. Box 155 7, Oklahoma City 1, Okla.

In the event we have inadvertently omitted listing a CB manufacturer, we would greatly appreciate your furnishing us with the name and address of the manufacturer so that he may be contacted regarding being listed in our Directories (for which there are no charges or obligations).

The following abbreviations have been used:

NIICP—No information, if currently produced.

NCBP—Not currently being produced.

PNA—Price not available/announced.

(Note: Manufacturers make design and price modifications on their products from time-to-time. The listings herein contain the latest such information in our files at press time.)

FCC MONITORING STATION DIRECTORY

By Rex Holmes, 24W2424
Washington Editor, CB Horizons

CB'ers have heard all sorts of locations mentioned as being the lurking places of the fabled FCC monitoring stations. Some CB'ers ask if they are hidden in hotel rooms, some ask if they are in this or that city.

Worry not! CBH has come to the rescue with not only the locations of the monitoring stations, but also the call-signs and several operating frequencies of their intercommunications radio nets.

The operating frequencies for their intermonitoring station radio transmitters are: 4483 kc., 7790 kc., 10655 kc., 13830 kc., 13990 kc., and 18050 kc.

Find them on the map below by their index numbers, here they are:

Primary Monitoring Stations

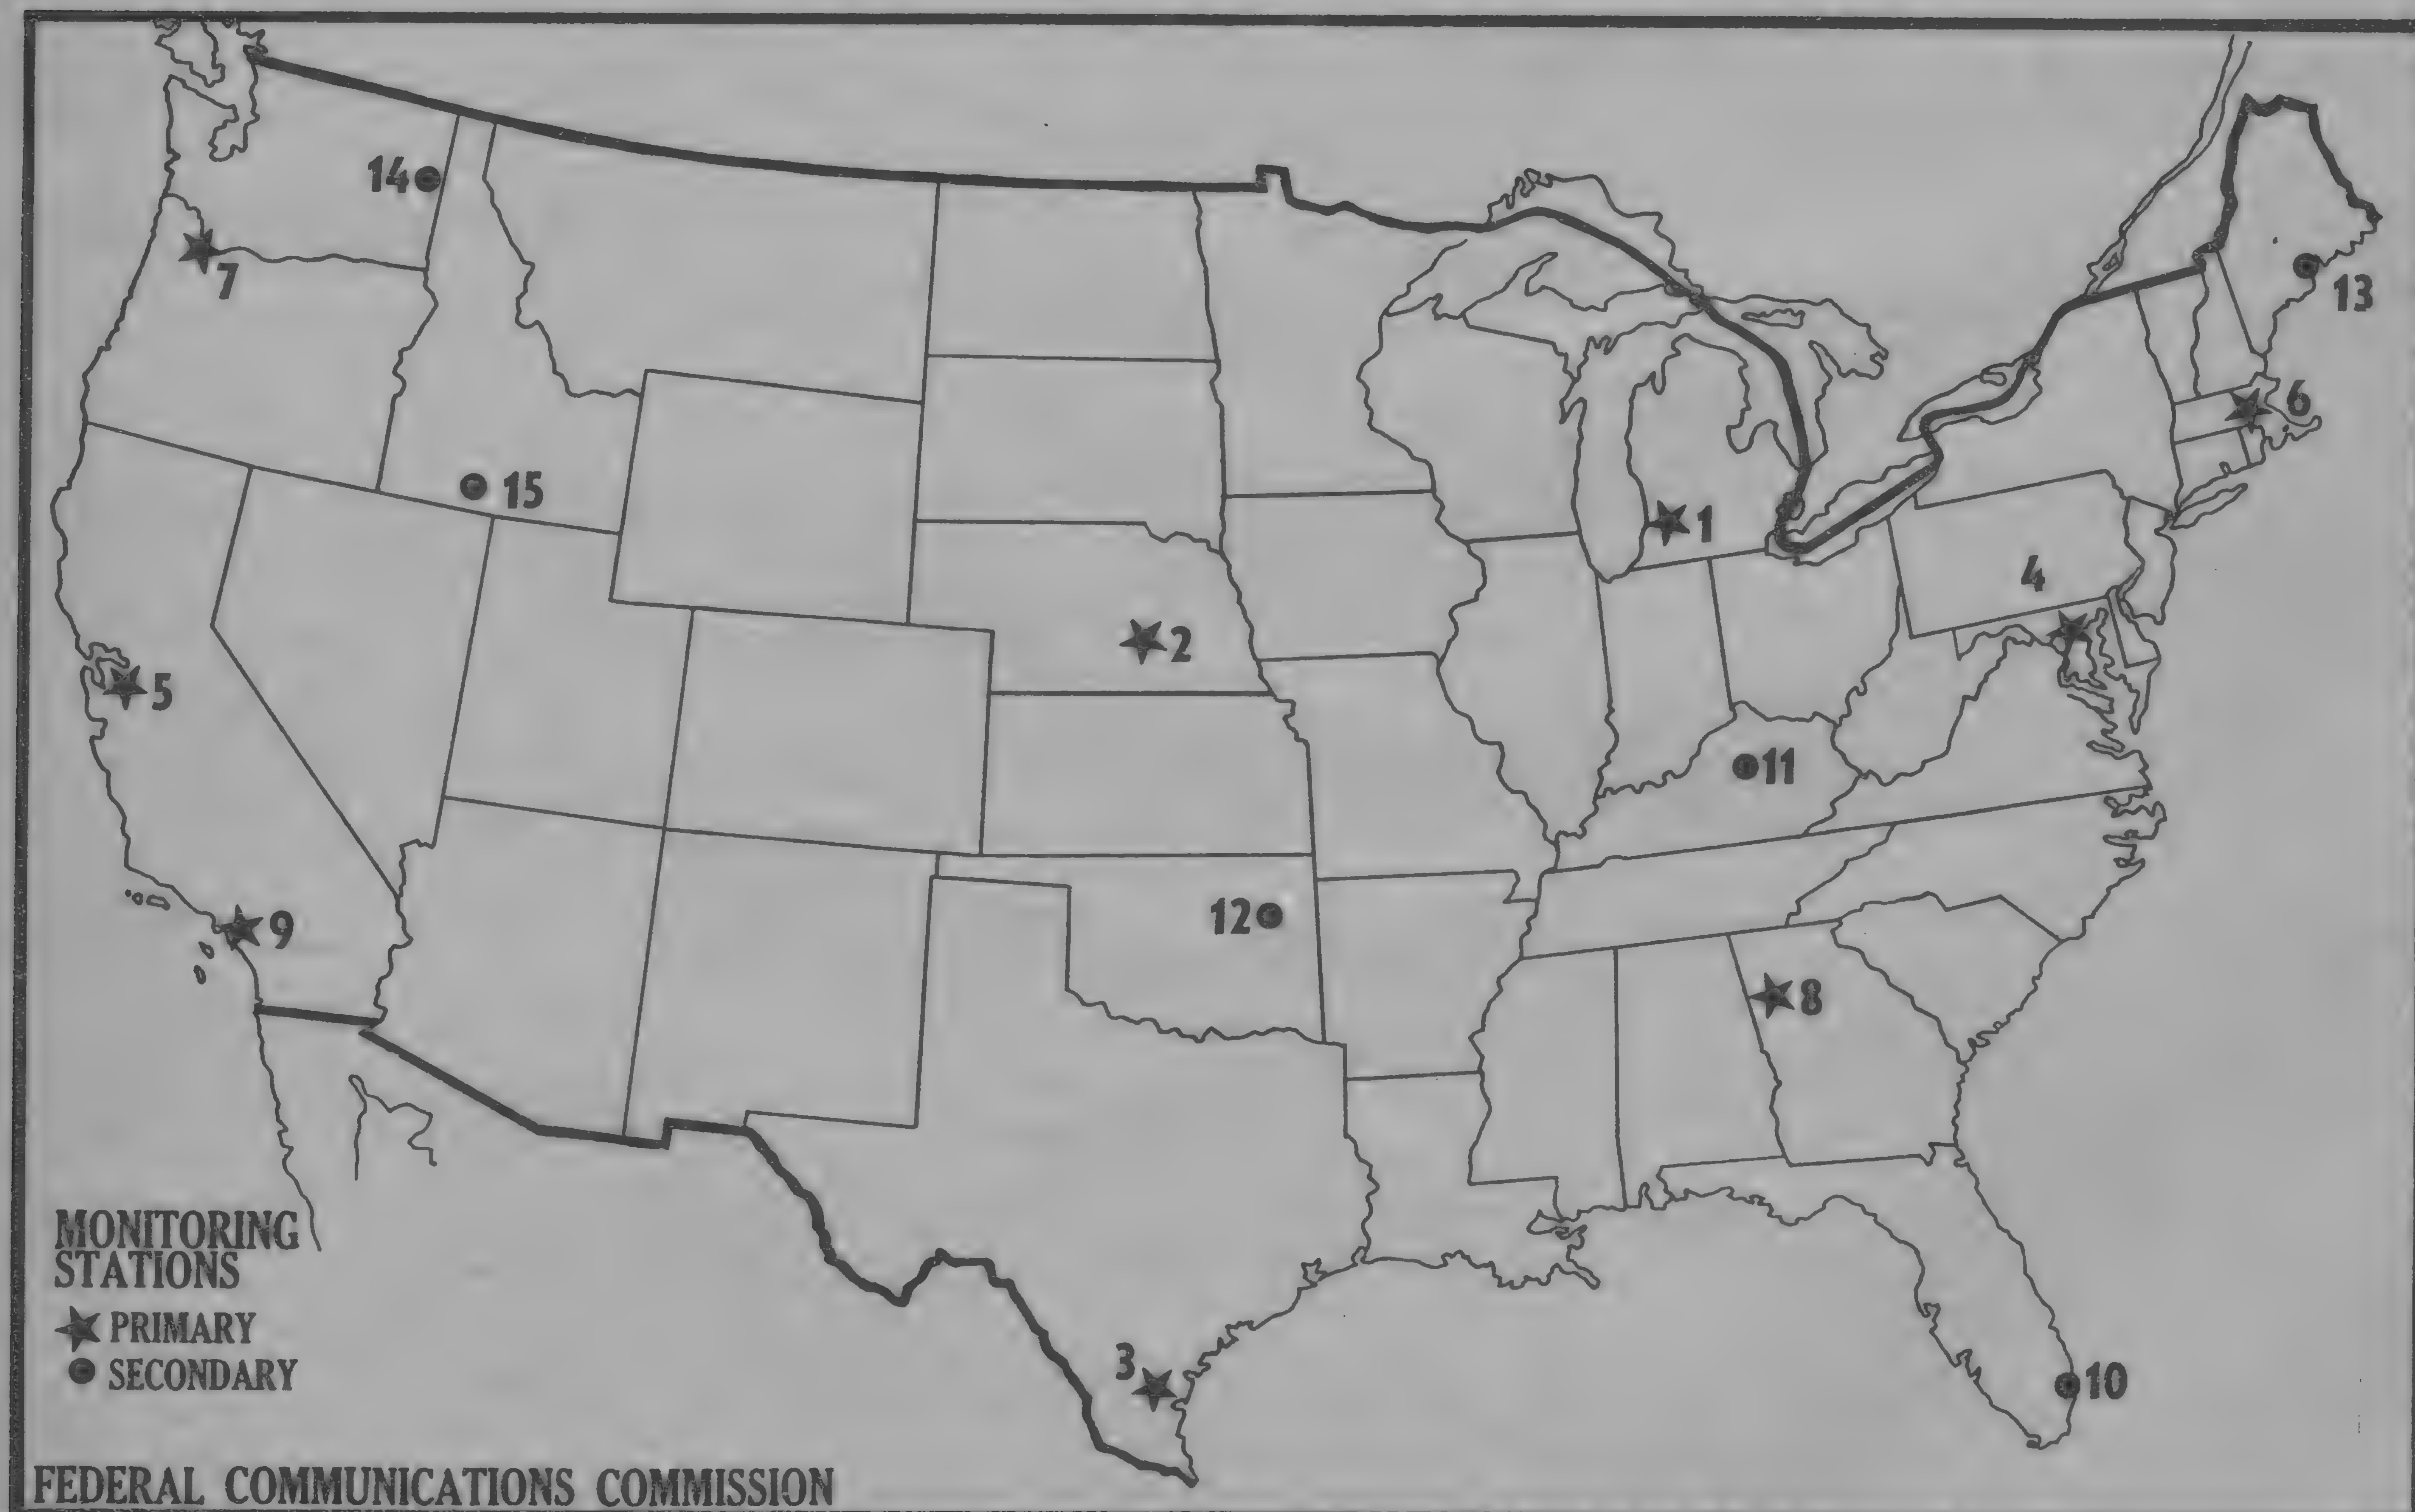

1. KQA62 Allegan, Mich.
2. KAA60 Grand Island, Nebr.
3. KKA60 Kingsville, Tex.
4. KGA91 Laurel, Md.
5. KMB27 Livermore, Calif.

6. KCA38 Mills, Mass.
7. KOA56 Portland, Ore.
8. KIA84 Powder Springs, Ga.
9. KMB26 Santa Ana, Calif.
- KUN70 Lanikai, Hawaii

Secondary Monitoring Stations

10. KIA85 Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.
11. KIA83 Lexington, Ky.
12. KKA61 Muskogee, Okla.
13. KCA35 Searsport, Me.
14. KOA55 Spokane, Wash.
15. KOA54 Twin Falls, Idaho
- KWC41 Anchorage, Alaska
- KWO66 Fairbanks, Alaska

Coverage for these stations is about 100 miles for direct wave ("ground wave") for local stations. On skip, figure that if you are hearing CB'ers located within 100 miles of any of these stations then chances are the FCC can hear you.
